

CONDUCTORS, INSULATORS, SEMICONDUCTORS

The electrical properties of various materials are determined by the number of electrons in the outer ring of their atoms.

- CONDUCTORS - Materials with 1 to 3 electrons in the atom's outer ring make good conductors. The electrons are held loosely, there's room for more, and a low EMF will cause a flow of free electrons.

- INSULATORS - Materials with 5 to 8 electrons in the atom's outer ring are insulators. The electrons are held tightly, the ring's fairly full, and a very high EMF is needed to cause any electron flow at all. Such materials include glass, rubber, and certain plastics.

- SEMICONDUCTORS - Materials with exactly 4 electrons in the atom's outer ring are called semiconductors. They are neither good conductors, nor good insulators. Such materials include carbon, germanium, and silicon.

CURRENT FLOW THEORIES

Two theories describe current flow. The conventional theory, commonly used for automotive systems, says current flows from (+) to (-) ... excess electrons flow from an area of high potential to one of low potential (-). The electron theory, commonly used for electronics, says current flows from (-) to (+) ... excess electrons cause an area of negative potential (-) and flow toward an area lacking electrons, an area of positive potential (+), to balance the charges.

While the direction of current flow makes a difference in the operation of some devices, such as diodes, the direction makes no difference to the three measurable units of electricity: voltage, current, and resistance.
