

PARENTING STYLES

Parenting styles are often categorized into four main types based on the work of psychologist Diana Baumrind.

These styles reflect different approaches to parenting and have varying impacts on a child's development.

AUTHORITATIVE

Style: Parents have clear expectations, but are also responsive, nurturing, and willing to collaborate with the child.

Discipline: Natural consequences, guidance, and discussion are used to remediate behaviors and establish boundaries.

Impact: Kids tend to be more self-reliant, socially competent, and have higher self-esteem and academic achievement due to reliable and considerate support.

DISENGAGED

Style: Parents are neither demanding nor responsive and they provide little emotional support, guidance, or attention to the child's needs.

Discipline: Due to lack of parental presence or investment, rules and boundaries are not enforced.

Impact: Kids may experience emotional and behavioral difficulties, have low self-esteem, and struggle academically and socially due to the lack of parental involvement.

AUTHORITARIAN

Style: Parents are highly demanding and directive, and they expect compliance without much explanation or flexibility.

Discipline: Strict punishment, lectures, and yelling are used to enforce rules.

Impact: Kids may be superficially obedient, but tend to struggle with low self-esteem, social competence, and anxiety due to the lack of autonomy, collaboration, and empathetic parental response.

PERMISSIVE

Style: Parents are highly responsive and accommodating, but have few demands, boundaries, or expectations.

Discipline: Rules and boundaries are not enforced, and kids are often appeased for poor behavior or emotional distress.

Impact: Kids may exhibit increased independence and creativity, but may also struggle with self-regulation, discipline, anxiety, and authority due to lack of structure.

Parenting Matters National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Board on Children, Youth, and Families, Committee on Supporting the Parents of Young Children, 2016-12-21 Decades of research have demonstrated that the parent-child dyad and the environment of the family, which includes all primary caregivers, are at the foundation of children's well-being and healthy development. From birth, children are learning and rely on parents and the other caregivers in their lives to protect and care for them. The impact of parents may never be greater than during the earliest years of life when a child's brain is rapidly developing and when nearly all of her or his experiences are created and shaped by parents and the family environment. Parents help children build and refine their knowledge and skills, charting a trajectory for their health and well-being during childhood and beyond. The experience of parenting also impacts parents themselves. For instance, parenting can enrich and give focus to parents' lives, generate stress or calm, and create any number of emotions, including feelings of happiness, sadness, fulfillment, and anger. Parenting of young children today takes place in the context of significant ongoing developments. These include a rapidly growing body of science on early childhood, increases in funding for programs and services for families, changing demographics of the U.S. population, and greater diversity of family structure. Additionally, parenting is increasingly being shaped by technology and increased access to information about parenting. Parenting Matters identifies parenting knowledge, attitudes, and practices associated with positive developmental outcomes in children ages 0-8 universal preventive and targeted strategies used in a variety of settings that have been effective with parents of young children and that support the identified knowledge, attitudes, and practices and barriers to and facilitators for parents' use of practices that lead to healthy child outcomes as well as their participation in effective programs and services. This report makes recommendations directed at an array of stakeholders for promoting the wide-scale adoption of effective programs and services for parents and on areas that warrant further research to inform policy and practice. It is meant to serve as a roadmap for the future of parenting policy research and practice in the United States. Resources in Education, 2001
