What Every Person Should Know About War Chris Hedges,2007-11-01 Acclaimed New York Times journalist and author Chris Hedges offers a critical and fascinating lesson in the dangerous realities of our age a stark look at the effects of war on combatants Utterly lacking in rhetoric or dogma this manual relies instead on bare fact frank description and a spare question and answer format Hedges allows U S military documentation of the brutalizing physical and psychological consequences of combat to speak for itself Hedges poses dozens of questions that young soldiers might ask about combat and then answers them by quoting from medical and psychological studies What are my chances of being wounded or killed if we go to war What does it feel like to get shot What do artillery shells do to you What is the most painful way to get wounded Will I be afraid What could happen to me in a nuclear attack What does it feel like to kill someone Can I withstand torture What are the long term consequences of combat stress What will happen to my body after I die This profound and devastating portrayal of the horrors to which we subject our armed forces stands as a ringing indictment of the glorification of war and the concealment of its barbarity Field Manuals United States. Superintendent of Documents,1986 Military Review ,1966 Doctrine of Eternal Recurrence Austin G. Long,2008 The publication of a new counterinsurgency COIN doctrine manual in late 2006 was widely heralded as an indication that the U S military was finally coming to understand the problems it has recently faced in Iraq and Afghanistan However this interpretation assumes a tight linkage between doctrine as written and operations as actually conducted By comparing modern counterinsurgency doctrine and operations to those of 1960s this paper tests and ultimately disproves this proposition An examination of COIN doctrine and operations in the 1960s reveals that operations seldom matched written doctrine Instead of winning hearts and minds improving civil military relations conducting small unit operations and gathering intelligence most Vietnam War commanders and units attempted to defeat the insurgency through large scale operations and overwhelming firepower Modern U S COIN operations in Afghanistan and Iraq demonstrate a similar preference for high intensity warfare and a similar inability to adapt technologically and mentally to the requirements of COIN To help explain the discrepancy between written doctrine and actual operations this paper posits that ingrained organizational concepts and beliefs have a much greater influence on operations than written doctrine While embedded beliefs can help organizations as they conduct their preferred missions they can be detrimental in other contexts Mental and material preparation for high intensity warfare has made the U S military poorly suited to COIN Altering these beliefs will require more than just new doctrine and some additional professional education The services must reorient themselves mentally as well as physically provided by publisher Army ,1985 Textbooks of Military Medicine: Recruit Medicine , Covers important aspects of recruit medicine such as the medical qualifications process health promotion and environmental risk management chronic diseases such as asthma injury prevention and management communicable illnesses behavior dental and women s health and recruit mortality Combat Ready? War Thomas E. Hanson, 2010 Historians and sliders have not been kind to either General Douglas MacArthur or the soldiers whom he placed in harm's way in the summer of 1950 This study seeks to redress the imbalance that exists between fact and interpretation For too long historians and soldiers have roundly criticized Task Force Smith's performance extrapolated from its fate a set of assumptions about what constitutes readiness and then used those assumptions to condemn the entire Eighth Army The reality is much more complex A proper examination of the historical record reveals wide disparities in the readiness and combat effectiveness of the subordinate units of America's first forward deployed Cold War field force This work will demonstrate how units achieved that readiness by means of case studies of four infantry regiments one from each of the four infantry divisions that constituted the Eighth Army in 1950 It synthesizes contemporary training doctrine training records generated by maneuver units unit histories reports of inspections by outside agencies contemporary self assessments and the observations of veterans who served in Japan in the fifteen months before the outbreak of the Korean War It challenges the long standing reputation of the Eighth Army as flabby dispirited and weak Introduction Confirmed Kill

Department of the Army, 1980 The Medical Department of the United States Army in World War II. United States. Army Medical Service, 1960 A Military History of the Cold War, 1962-1991 Jonathan M. House, 2020-09-24 Study of the Cold War all too often shows us the war that wasn't fought The reality of course is that many hot conflicts did occur some with the great powers weapons and approval others without It is this reality and this period of quasi war and semiconflict that Jonathan M House plumbs in A Military History of the Cold War 1962 1991 a complex case study in the Clausewitzian relationship between policy and military force during a time of global upheaval and political realignment This volume opens a new perspective on three fraught decades of Cold War history revealing how the realities of time distance resources and military culture often constrained and diverted the inclinations or policies of world leaders In addition to the Vietnam War and nuclear confrontations between the USSR and the United States this period saw dozens of regional wars and insurgencies fought throughout Asia Africa and Latin America Cuba Pakistan Indonesia Israel Egypt and

South Africa pursued their own goals in ways that drew the superpowers into regional disputes. Even clashes ostensibly unrelated to the politics of East West confrontation such as the Nigerian Biafran conflict, the Falklands/Malvinas War, and the Indonesian occupation of East Timor involved armed forces, weapons, and tactics developed for the larger conflict and thus come under House's scrutiny. His study also takes up nontraditional or specialized aspects of the period including weapons of mass destruction, civil-military relations, civil defense, and control of domestic disorders. The result is a single integrated survey and analysis of a complex period in geopolitical history which fills a significant gap in our knowledge of the organization, logistics, operations, and tactics involved in conflict throughout the Cold War.
