

"Well, it kind of is, at least for me," JJ explained as she kicked her feet onto her desk. "My parents are waiting for me to 'come around.'"

You know, be a good girl and make them proud. This is their version of boarding school, or boot camp. Lord knows they've already tried all that crap."

"Well, it's sort of the opposite for me," Eve said.

"You trying to escape something?"

Eve hesitated. "I guess you could say that."

"Dynamic. I respect that." She paused. "You never answered my question, you know. Everyone's here for a reason. What was your golden ticket?"

"I'm just smart."

"Ah, yes, the nerd-type. There are plenty of you guys here."

Eve took a step, albeit a minuscule one, out of her comfort zone.

"You?"

Essays and Dialogues Giacomo Leopardi, 1882 A Dialogue of Voices Karen Ann Hohne, Helen Wussow, 1994 A Dialogue of Voices was first published in 1994. Minnesota Archive Editions uses digital technology to make long unavailable books once again accessible and are published unaltered from the original University of Minnesota Press editions. The work of the Russian theorist Mikhail Bakhtin, particularly his notions of dialogics and genre, has had a substantial impact on contemporary critical practices. Until now, however, little attention has been paid to the possibilities and challenges Bakhtin presents to feminist theory. The task taken up in A Dialogue of Voices is to arrive at new theoretical approaches. Together, these essays point to a new direction for feminist theory that originates in Bakhtin, one that would lead to a feminine tre rather than a feminine criture. Focusing on feminist theorists such as Hélène Cixous, Teresa de Lauretis, Julia Kristeva, and Monique Wittig, in conjunction with Bakhtin's concepts of dialogism, heteroglossia, and chronotope, the authors offer close readings of texts from a wide range of multicultural genres, including nature writing, sermon composition, nineteenth-century British women's fiction, the contemporary romance novel, Irish and French lyric poetry, and Latin American film. The result is a unique dialogue in which authors of both sexes, from several countries and different eras, speak against, for, and with one another in ways that reveal their works anew, as well as the critical matrices surrounding them. Karen Hohne is an independent scholar and artist living in Moorhead, Minnesota. Helen Wussow is an assistant professor of English at Memphis State University.

Freud and Augustine in Dialogue William B. Parsons, 2013-11-15 It is arguably the case writes William Parsons that no two figures have had more influence on the course of Western introspective thought than Freud and Augustine Yet it is commonly assumed that Freud and Augustine would have nothing to say to each other with regard to spirituality or mysticism given the former's alleged antipathy to religion and the latter's not usually being considered a mystic Adopting an interdisciplinary dialogical and transformational framework for interpreting Augustine's spiritual journey in his Confessions Parsons places a mystical theology at the heart of Augustine's narrative and argues that his mysticism has been misunderstood partly because of the limited nature of the psychological models applied to it At the same time he expands Freud's therapeutic legacy to incorporate the contemporary findings of physiology and neuroscience that have been influenced in part by modern spirituality Parsons develops a new psychological hermeneutic to account for Augustine's mysticism that will capture the imagination of contemporary readers who are both psychologically informed and interested in spirituality The author intends this interpretive model not only to engage modern introspective concerns about developmental conflict and the power of the unconscious but also to reach a more nuanced level of insight into the origins and the nature of the self
