Bucher, M. Frey, 2013-03-09 Metamorphic rocks make up the largest volume of the Earth They systematically change their mineralogical composition as a result of tectothermal events The outstanding feature of the 7th edition of this book is the large number of phase diagrams showing the stability relations among minerals and groups of minerals found in metamorphic rocks The diagrams help to determine the pressure and temperature conditions under which a given collected set of metamorphic rocks may have formed More than half of the chapters have been completely rewritten or revised All figures have been edited and improved and recent advances in the field such as multiequilibria thermobarometry and pseudosections were incorporated in the text The bibliography has been revised and extended new research publications have also been included Graduate students will find in depth information on the origin significance and genesis of metamorphic rocks      Petrogenesis of Metamorphic Rocks Kurt Bucher, Martin Frey, 2013-04-17 Metamorphic rocks are one of the three classes of rocks Seen on a global scale they constitute the dominant material of the Earth The understanding of the petrogenesis and significance of metamorphic of geological education rocks is therefore a fundamental topic There are of course many different possible ways to lecture on this theme This book addresses rock metamorphism from a relatively pragmatic view point It has been written for the senior undergraduate or graduate student who needs practical knowledge of how to interpret various groups of minerals found in metamorphic rocks The book is also of interest for the non specialist and non petrologist professional who is interested in learning more about the geological messages that metamorphic mineral assemblages are sending as well as pressure and temperature conditions of formation The book is organized into two parts The first part introduces the different types of metamorphism defines some names terms and graphs used to describe metamorphic rocks and discusses principal aspects of metamorphic processes Part I introduces the causes of metamorphism on various scales in time and space and some principles of chemical reactions in rocks that accompany metamorphism but without treating these principles in detail and presenting the thermodynamic basis for quantitative analysis of reactions and their equilibria in metamorphism Part I also presents concepts of metamorphic grade or intensity of metamorphism such as the metamorphic facies concept
