Online Student Teachers Guide

The purpose of this lab is to help you understand the science of color vision. You will learn how the human eye and brain work together to see color. This lab is designed for student teachers and is intended to be used as a resource for your own classroom.

The lab is divided into three main sections: 1. The Human Eye, 2. The Human Brain, and 3. Color Vision. Each section contains a series of questions and answers that will help you understand the science of color vision.

1. The Human Eye

The human eye is a complex organ that is able to see color. It is made up of several parts, including the cornea, iris, lens, and retina. The cornea is the front part of the eye that helps to focus light. The iris is the colored part of the eye that controls the amount of light that enters the eye. The lens is a transparent structure that helps to focus light on the retina. The retina is the back part of the eye that contains the photoreceptors that convert light into electrical signals that the brain can understand.

2. The Human Brain

The human brain is the part of the body that controls all of our actions. It is made up of several parts, including the cerebrum, cerebellum, and brainstem. The cerebrum is the largest part of the brain and is responsible for most of our thinking and feeling. The cerebellum is a smaller part of the brain that is responsible for coordination and balance. The brainstem is the part of the brain that connects the cerebrum and cerebellum to the rest of the body.

3. Color Vision

Color vision is the ability to see different colors. It is a complex process that involves the eye and the brain. The eye contains three types of photoreceptors called cones that are sensitive to different colors of light. The brain then processes the signals from these cones to create the perception of color.

PhET Online Lab is a free resource for student teachers and is intended to be used as a resource for your own classroom. It is designed to help you understand the science of color vision and to provide you with a series of questions and answers that will help you understand the science of color vision.

Additive Color Mixing

Additive color mixing is the process of combining different colors of light to create new colors. This is how we see colors in the world around us. For example, when we see a red apple, it is because the apple is reflecting red light and absorbing all other colors of light.

Subtractive Color Mixing

Subtractive color mixing is the process of combining different colors of paint or ink to create new colors. This is how we see colors in the world around us. For example, when we see a blue sky, it is because the sky is reflecting blue light and absorbing all other colors of light.
