Nothing Personal? Nick Gill, 2016-02-23 In this groundbreaking new study Nick Gill provides a conceptually innovative account of the ways in which indifference to the desperation and hardship faced by thousands of migrants fleeing persecution and exploitation comes about. Features original unpublished empirical material from four Economic and Social Research Council ESRC funded projects. Challenges the consensus that border controls are necessary or desirable in contemporary society. Demonstrates how immigration decision makers are immersed in a suffocating web of institutionalized processes that greatly hinder their objectivity and limit their access to alternative perspectives. Theoretically informed throughout drawing on the work of a range of social theorists including Max Weber, Zygmunt Bauman, Emmanuel Levinas and Georg Simmel.

The Geography of Mobility, Wellbeing and Development in China Wenjie Wu, Yiming Wang, 2020-02-25 Big data is increasingly regarded as a new approach for understanding urban informatics and complex systems. Today there is unprecedented data availability with detailed remote sensed data on the built environment and rich mineable web based sources in the form of social media, web mapping information services and other sources of unstructured big data. This book brings together a group of international contributors to consider the geographical implications of mobility, wellbeing and development within and across Chinese cities through location based big data perspectives. The degree of urban sprawl, productive density and vibrancy can be reflected from location based social media big data. The challenge is to identify map and model these relationships to develop cities at different places in the urban hierarchical system that are more sustainable. This edited book aims to tackle these issues through two inter related geographical scales: inter city level and intra city level. The text is designed for graduate courses in planning, geography, public policy and administration and for international researchers who are involved in urban and regional economics and economic geography.
