Data Exploration Using Example-Based Methods Matteo Lissandrini, Davide Mottin, Themis Palpanas, Yannis Velegrakis, 2022-06-01 Data usually comes in a plethora of formats and dimensions rendering the exploration and information extraction processes challenging Thus being able to perform exploratory analyses in the data with the intent of having an immediate glimpse on some of the data properties is becoming crucial Exploratory analyses should be simple enough to avoid complicate declarative languages such as SQL and mechanisms and at the same time retain the flexibility and expressiveness of such languages Recently we have witnessed a rediscovery of the so called example based methods in which the user or the analyst circumvents query languages by using examples as input An example is a representative of the intended results or in other words an item from the result set Example based methods exploit inherent characteristics of the data to infer the results that the user has in mind but may not be able to easily express They can be useful in cases where a user is looking for information in an unfamiliar dataset when the task is particularly challenging like finding duplicate items or simply when they are exploring the data In this book we present an excursus over the main methods for exploratory analysis with a particular focus on example based methods We show how that different data types require different techniques and present algorithms that are specifically designed for relational textual and graph data The book presents also the challenges and the new frontiers of machine learning in online settings which recently attracted the attention of the database community The lecture concludes with a vision for further research and applications in this area
