The Scientific Monthly James McKeen Cattell, 1928 International Bulletin of Information on Refrigeration International Institute of Refrigeration, 1923 Monthly Bulletin of Information on Refrigeration, 1923 Guilds, Price Formation and Market Structures in Byzantium George C. Maniatis, 2024-12-11 The essays reproduced in this volume analyze the guild system in Byzantium and the West and investigate for the first time the process of price formation in Byzantium Innovative approaches are devised to fathom the conceptual basis institutional parameters market organization and structures and market dynamics which shaped price determination Correlatively it is persuasively established that the Byzantine guilds unlike their counterparts in the West did not fix prices through concerted action as they did not command the requisite market power or institutional support Fundamentally these studies argue that the Byzantine economy was market oriented as the state was quite circumspect in its interventions and pursued market based policies within a regulatory framework aimed to thwart unfair business practices protect the consumer curb the concentration of economic power and prevent the emergence of monopolistic market structures The competitive process and market mechanism were buttressed by a panoply of legal and other institutional arrangements aimed to frustrate anti competitive practices and ensure correct business conduct to maintain a level playing field Even in guild organized sectors the authorities did not interfere with the firms decision making process relying on the dynamic interaction of market forces and letting the market mechanism take hold The long standing notion of a command and control economy is indefensible

Rough Seas James Greene, 2011-11-30 A trawlerman s life was hard often up against bad weather rough seas and black frosts although on calm days it was a pleasure to be at sea In this eventful memoir deep sea trawlerman James Greene relates his life at sea from his childhood when his father would take him out in some of the worst gales and hurricanes imaginable to his early career as a deckhand learner obtaining his skipper s ticket and the many experiences both disastrous and otherwise to occur throughout his time at sea During his career he was involved in ship collisions and fires arrested for poaching fired upon by Icelandic gunboats in countless storms and even swept overboard in icy conditions off the Russian coast The British trawling industry is largely a bygone age and people are beginning to forget the adventures hardships and joys that characterised this most dangerous of professions This book seeks to keep the memories of a once great industry alive

Inland Fish Marketing in India , I-83 Construction from Gay St to I-95, Baltimore ,1983

The Fish Lands Bart Holterman,2020-09-21 The late medieval German trade with the North Atlantic islands in the margins of the Hanseatic trade network has received only limited scholarly attention Merchants from predominantly Hamburg and Bremen established direct trade relations with these islands in the late 15th century and managed to control the international trade with Iceland the Faroes and Shetland for much of the 16th century However the Hanseatic commercial infrastructure was absent in the North Atlantic which forced these merchants to develop new trade strategies Besides a critical re evaluation of the economic and political conditions this volume offers a comprehensive study of the organisation of the trade and the methods used to establish and maintain networks between islanders and German merchants Moreover it analyses the role and socio economic position of the communities of merchants with the North Atlantic in their home towns The book shows that the North Atlantic trade was anything but insignificant It was a dynamic and integral part of the trade network of the northern German cities and its study is highly relevant for the economic history of Northern Europe
