

Chapter 1

Chapter 1 Project Worksheet 1 (p. 6)

Students' data tables and graphs will vary somewhat. In general, eggs will increase in size when they soak in vinegar and plain water, and they will decrease in size when they soak in liquids that have a lower concentration of water, such as salt water.

Chapter 1 Project Worksheet 2 (p. 7)

Column 4 in the table should read: 70 percent (liquid A); 92 percent (liquid B); 87 percent (liquid C); 79 percent (liquid D)

1. Liquids A and D would cause the cell to lose water; liquids B and C would cause the cell to take in water.
2. Possible answers might include shampoo, syrup, ketchup, or honey.

Section 1-1 Review and Reinforce (p. 11)

1. Hooke
2. First person to observe bacteria
3. Schleiden
4. Concluded that all animals are made up of cells
5. Virchow
6. Magnification and resolution are both important properties of a microscope. Magnification is the ability to increase how large an object appears, whereas resolution is the ability to bring the details of the object into focus.
7. An electron microscope uses electrons instead of light to magnify an object, and it can view an object with much greater magnification and resolution than a light microscope.
8. Cells are the basic unit of structure and function in living things, and all living things are composed of cells.
9. b
10. e
11. d
12. c
13. a
14. g
15. f

Section 1-1 Enrich (p. 12)

1. Transmission electron microscopes (TEM) and transmission positron microscopes (TPM) both use beams of atomic particles to view specimens. However, the TPM uses beams of positrons, which do not harm living things, whereas the TEM uses beams of electrons, which living things cannot withstand. Therefore, unlike the TEM, the TPM can be used to view living specimens.
2. Acoustic microscopes bounce high-frequency sound waves off an object. The echoes of the sound waves are then translated onto a screen as a microscopic image.
3. Transmission positron microscopes and acoustic microscopes can be used to view cells that are still alive and functioning. Electron microscopes, on the other hand, can be used to view only cells that are no longer alive.

Section 1-2 Review and Reinforce (p. 15)

1. cytoplasm
2. endoplasmic reticulum
3. nucleus
4. mitochondrion
5. cell membrane
6. Organelles
7. cell wall
8. cell membrane
9. nucleus
10. chromatin
11. cytoplasm
12. Mitochondria
13. endoplasmic reticulum
14. Ribosomes
15. Golgi bodies
16. chloroplasts
17. vacuole
18. Lysosomes

Section 1-2 Enrich (p. 16)

1. (1) builds new structures; (2) carries materials from place to place; (3) produces power; (4) produces food; (5) disposes of waste; (6) controls the rest of Cell City; (7) stores foods and water; (8) controls what enters and leaves Cell City

University Science and Mathematics Education in Transition Ole Skovsmose, Paola Valero, Ole Ravn Christensen, 2008-11-19 More than ever our time is characterised by rapid changes in the organisation and the production of knowledge This movement is deeply rooted in the evolution of the scientific endeavour as well as in the transformation of the political economic and cultural organisation of society In other words the production of scientific knowledge is changing both with regard to the internal development of science and technology and with regard to the function and role science and technology fulfill in society This general social context in which universities and knowledge production are placed has been given different names the informational society the knowledge society the learning society the post industrial society the risk society or even the post modern society A common feature of different characterisations of this historic time is the fact that it is a period in construction Parts of the world not only of the First World but also chunks of the Developing World are involved in these transformations There is a movement from former social political and cultural forms of organisation which impact knowledge production into new forms These forms drive us into forms of organisation that are unknown and that for their very same complexity do not show a clear ending stage Somehow the utopias that guided the ideas of development and progress in the past are not present anymore and therefore the transitions in the knowledge society generate a new uncertain world We find ourselves and our universities to be in a transitional period in time In this context it is difficult to avoid considering seriously the challenges that such a complex and uncertain social configuration poses to scientific knowledge to universities and especially to education in mathematics and science It is clear that the transformation of knowledge outside universities has implied a change in the routes that research in mathematics science and technology has taken in the last decades It is also clear that in different parts of the world these changes have happened at different points in time While universities in the New World the American Continent Africa Asia and Oceania have accommodated their operation to the challenges of the construction in the new world in many European countries universities with a longer existence and tradition have moved more slowly into this time of transformation and have been responding at a less rapid pace to environmental challenges The process of tuning universities together with their forms of knowledge production and their provision of education in science and mathematics with the demands of the informational society has been a complex process as complex as the general transformation undergoing in society Therefore an understanding of the current transitions in science and mathematics education has to consider different dimensions involved in such a change. Traditionally, educational studies in mathematics and science education have looked at changes in education from within the scientific disciplines and in the closed context of the classroom. Although educational change in the very end is implemented in everyday teaching and learning situations, other parallel dimensions influencing these situations cannot be forgotten. An understanding of the actual potentialities and limitations of educational transformations are highly dependent on the network of educational, cultural, administrative and ideological views and practices that permeate and constitute science and mathematics education in universities today. This book contributes to understanding some of the multiple aspects and dimensions of the transition of science and mathematics education in the current informational society. Such an understanding is necessary for finding possibilities to improve science and mathematics education in universities all around the world. Such a broad approach to the transitions happening in these fields has not been addressed yet by existing books in the market.
