Workplace Competencies (SCANS) of Job Applicants as Reported by Human Resource Personnel Starla Lynn

Green-Ivey,2002 Purpose of study The primary purpose of this study was to investigate the perceptions of human resource personnel with respect to workplace competencies possessed by job applicants and the factors employed when evaluating these skills in job applicants This information should help educators and trainers better prepare applicants for the transition between school to work Methodology Data for the study were collected during face to face meetings with human resource personnel from 25 employers in mid Missouri Adapted from the SCANS report the survey included five competency domains resources information interpersonal skills systems and technology Findings Job applicants at various educational skill levels possess different levels of workplace competencies Human resource personnel commented that they were having difficulty finding qualified applicants because fewer qualified applicants apply and their soft skills need to be higher Conclusions To the extent that data are valid and reliable a fewer employers are hiring job applicants who are at the less than GED educational skill level b as the educational skill level of a job applicant increases so does the level of workplace competencies possessed and the hiring salary c the assessment method does not differ among educational skill levels however the type of information addressed becomes more technical and specific d companies utilize a combination of assessment methods to increase the validity of the screening process and e employers believe in the importance of teaching soft skills to job applicants and must actively encourage educational administrators to develop curriculums that accentuate soft skills

Opportunity in America Irwin Kirsch, Henry Braun, 2016-01-22 Across the country our children are beginning life from very different starting points Some have aspirations and believe they can be achieved For too many others aspirations are tempered if not dashed by the sobering realities of everyday life These different starting points place children on distinctly different trajectories of growth and development ultimately leading to vastly different adult outcomes How did we get to a place where circumstances of birth have become so determinative And what must we do within communities and across our country to better equalize opportunity for more Americans both young and old The editors of this volume contend that if as a nation we do nothing then we will continue to drift apart placing an unsustainable strain on the nation s social fabric and the character of its democracy Consequently understanding the dynamics governing the distribution and transmission of opportunity and transforming this understanding into policies and programs is critical for not only the life outcomes of individual Americans and their children but also the country as a whole The goal of Educational Testing Service s Opportunity in America initiative is to explore these powerful dynamics and to describe and convey them in a way that advances the national conversation about why we must take action and how best to do so This volume contains 14 chapters including an epilogue written by leaders from a range of fields including education economics demography and political science Collectively they not only illuminate key aspects of the problem but also offer suggestions of what policies programs and changes in practices could begin to reverse the trends we are seeing Written in an engaging style this volume constitutes an essential foundation for informed discussion and strategic analysis
