Transforming Preschool Storytime Betsy Diamant-Cohen, Melanie A. Hetrick, 2013-06-18 According to recent research the best way to make new connections in a child's brain is by building on something already known. A child who loves a book will listen to it repeatedly maintaining interest. Using a selected book in a number of consecutive preschool storytimes but presenting it differently each time can help children learn new skill sets. This book presents a new approach to storytime one that employs repetition with variety to create an experience which helps children connect and engage with the story on a higher level. Diamant-Cohen recently awarded the 2013 ASCLA Leadership and Professional Achievement Award and Hetrick offers a year's worth of activities specifically designed to address multiple intelligences through a repetition-based process. Incorporating recent theories on developmental learning this book includes Scripts for 8 different books with enough activities to repeat each one for six weeks along with lists of optional alternative books. Planning aids such as outlines of storytime sessions, a fill-in-the-blanks planning sheet, questions for evaluation and tips for enhanced storytimes using props and crafts. Detailed but straightforward explanations of theory and research that will help readers communicate effectively with parents, caregivers and other stakeholders. From setup to execution here's everything you need to create and implement a successful elevated storytime.

Family Scrapbooks Michele Gerbrandt, Deborah Cannarella, 2001 Combine new methods with old as you merge your past and present. Translate everyday events and shared family routines into beautiful or whimsical pages that capture your special memories. Punch art, pop-ups and lift-the-flap pages and kaleidoscopes will bring your story to life. Scrapbooks celebrate the importance of even the simplest times that we share with friends and family. With some thought and planning and some creativity and fun you can design pages that capture the essence of each of the days in your family's lives, days that you and future generations won't want to forget.

Writing Classified and Unclassified Papers for National Security James S. Major, 2008-11-25 Since 9/11 the profession of intelligence has come under increased scrutiny. Written products have been criticized for lack of clarity or for unconvincing arguments. Nations have gone to war based on what was considered the best available intelligence only to learn later that it had been flawed. A lack of standards for written products across the Intelligence Community has adversely impacted those products and those who depend upon them. Writing Classified and Unclassified Papers for National Security is designed to serve as a style guide for those in the intelligence profession and for those aspiring to that career and pursuing studies in intelligence, national security, homeland security or homeland defense. It provides essential information and guidelines regarding the preparation of written products to satisfy the intended consumers. This desktop reference is essential for career intelligence professionals and as a reference book for students.

Prison Librarianship Policy and Practice Suzanna Conrad, 2016-11-10 Prisoners are in a grey area regarding library services. Prison libraries violate many tenets of librarianship with the justification of maintaining order. The field is de-professionalized; many positions are filled by persons without degrees in library science and corrections.

administrators often write policy for services Critics cite the need to implement public library service models despite practical difficulties This book investigates state national and international policies on prison libraries reviews literature on the topic and describes partnerships between prisons and public libraries Results from a national survey and follow up interviews are included providing a full narrative of policy outcomes in U S prisons Funk & Wagnalls New Standard
