

A Level (includes AS) Business Studies (BPO7)

What support materials are available?

- Syllabus
- Specimen Question-Papers (previous editions)
- All and A level (includes AS) Business – this includes examples of material student answers to AS and A level questions and has a commentary from expert examiners.
- Question Papers and Mark Schemes
- All the above are available from CIE Publications

How many hours/ contact time do you recommend for AS at level?

Over a two year A level course approximately 12 hours per week of teaching time would be sufficient. Students will be expected to do individual work outside of this time.

How can I get in touch with other teachers of Business Studies?

We have an email discussion list which you may find useful. The discussion lists are based on several disciplines. Sending a message or query to the list will mean that it is shared by all members of the list. By being a member of the list teachers can share ideas, resources and ask subject related questions which will be seen by the list (Product Manager and examiners but also by all other teachers who have registered on the list. For example, a teacher could ask how everyone is approaching a particular topic, what books they might recommend or simply find out who else is teaching their subject.

You can join the discussion list by e-mailing us at businessstudies@cie.org.uk

It appears that the first year AS course is based on more aspects of the syllabus. Should it be better when teaching some topics, in order to do depth, instead of just touching the surface, and leaving it down for the students to write the first year exam?

The approach to teaching the Business Studies syllabus really depends on when you plan to enter students for the examination. If you are planning to enter your candidates for all 4 papers at the end of the second year then you could follow the core and extension parts of each topic in year 10 before moving to the rest topic. This would be perfectly acceptable.

However, if you wish to take advantage of the staged assessment and enter your students for the AS at the end of the first year, then you are unlikely to have time to cover the Core and Extension topics across the every topic in the syllabus. The syllabus covers skills in knowledge, application, analysis and evaluation. It is important to focus, not only on the subject content for the AS and A level, but also on the skills that candidates are expected to demonstrate. The AS examinations place a larger emphasis on the skills of knowledge and application, whereas the A level papers (Paper 3 and Paper 4) place a greater emphasis on the more challenging skills of analysis and evaluation. It is expected that the first year of the course will concentrate on the skills of knowledge and application. The second year looks at some additional topics (extension topics) but also looks at the skills of analysis and evaluation, which are more difficult skills than those of knowledge and application.

Will the AS exam (Paper 3 and Paper 4) be testing both the core and extended syllabus or only the extended?

Paper 3 and Paper 4 will cover Core and Extension topics.

The specimen papers suggest that the level of difficulty for AS and A level are the same. Is this really the case?
