Lovers and Beloveds Gary Richards, 2007-05-01 A challenge to traditional criticism this engaging study demonstrates that issues of sexuality and same sex desire in particular were of central importance in the literary production of the Southern Renaissance Especially during the end of that period approximately the 1940s and 1950s the national literary establishment tacitly designated the South as an allowable setting for fictionalized deviancy thus permitting southern writers tremendous freedom to explore sexual otherness In Lovers and Beloveds Gary Richards draws on contemporary theories of sexuality in reading the fiction of six writers of the era who accepted that potentially pejorative characterization as an opportunity Truman Capote William Goyen Harper Lee Carson McCullers Lillian Smith and Richard Wright Richards skillfully juxtaposes forgotten texts by those writers with canonical works to identify the complex narratives of same sex desire In their novels and stories the authors consistently reimagine gender roles centralize homoeroticism and probe its relationship with class race biological sex and southern identity This is the first book to assess the significance of same sex desire in a broad range of southern texts making a crucial contribution to the study of both literature and sexuality

The Story of a

Country Town Edgar Watson Howe, 2015-02-19 Example in this ebook SHOULD The Story of a Country Town find readers it may be interesting to them to know that it was written entirely at night after the writer had finished a hard day's work as editor and publisher of a small evening newspaper I do not think a line of it was written while the sun was shining but in almost every chapter there are recollections of the midnight bell No one can possibly find more fault with it than I have found myself A hundred times I have been on the point of burning the manuscript and never attempting it again for I was always tired while working at it and always dissatisfied after concluding an evening's work I offer this as a general apology for its many defects and can only hope it will meet with the charity it deserves I believe that when I began the story I had some sort of an idea that I might be able to write an acceptable work of fiction but I have changed it so often and worried about it so much that at its conclusion I have no idea whether it is very bad or only indifferent I think that originally I had some hope that it might enable me to get rid of my weary newspaper work and help me to more ease than I have ever known but I am so tired now that I am incapable of exercising my judgment with reference to it If it prove a success or a failure I shall not be surprised for I have no opinion of my own on the subject For several years I have felt that I would like an opportunity to address a larger audience than my newspaper's circulation affords but I find now that I am very timid about it and worry a great deal for fear the verdict will not be favorable A gentleman who once looked over a portion of the manuscript said his first impression was that it was the work of a tired man and that the pen seemed to drag heavily in making the words I fear this will be the verdict of the people and that they will say I should have given up my newspaper writing before attempting it The reason I did not do this was that I had no confidence in my ability to become an acceptable historian of a country town therefore I worked harder than I should during the day and went wearily at the story at night Should inquiry be made as to whether any part of the story be true I could only reply that I have never known anyone who did not furnish some suggestion or idea in the construction of the book as I have never lived in a town that did not afford some material for the description of Twin Mounds I meet Jo Errings every day and frequently lead them up to denounce their particular Clinton Bragg I have known several John Westlocks and I am afraid that Mateel Shepherds are more numerous than is desirable I have known troops of Mrs John Westlocks for in the country where I was brought up all the women were pale timid and overworked I hope that Agnes Deming can be duplicated in every community and I believe that Big Adams are numerous everywhere but I must confess that I never knew but one Little Biggs though his wife may be seen hurrying out of the way should you decide to look for her in every third or fourth house I hope there will be general sympathy for Jo Erring In writing the history of this creature of my fancy I have almost come to believe that I have an uncle of that name and that he lived and died as I have narrated Sometimes I think of him wandering in the cave crying Help Help I am lost and his voice is very pitiful and distressed At other times he has come into my room and sat beside me as I wrote I have been with him to the cave on a stormy night and heard the beginning of the few sweet chords of music he describes but which were immediately broken into by the furious uproar of devils sometimes I think I have found him in every day life and that he is still listening at night to the horrible noise of his skeleton To be continue in this ebook      The Storyteller Christopher Corrigan,2022-01-06 This book contains love poems about people nature and the universe as well as romantic tales of love The Storytellers tells us in many ways Couplets are connecting the poems together We crawl in caves in turtle pace There are many characters in the poems such as Cosmic Cowboy Poet Storyteller Angels Ghosts frogs Bats spirits fire and the four seasons Lady of the Caverns and so on Some of the poems include I Knew There Must Be Angels Ghosts on the Rise Nine Eleven The Storyteller And Here We are on the Stage Tonight Surprised at the Magic Still in our Eyes Journey Through the Caverns The Dirty Knees Blues and A Homecoming for the Ships
