We Still Kill The Old Way:

Revolution in 35mm Andrew Nette, Samm Deighan, 2024-09-24 Revolution in 35mm Political Violence and Resistance in Cinema from the Arthouse to the Grindhouse 1960-1990 examines how political violence and resistance was represented in arthouse and cult films from 1960 to 1990. This historical period spans the Algerian war of independence and the early wave of post colonial struggles that reshaped the Global South through the collapse of Soviet Communism in the late 80s. It focuses on films related to the rise of protest movements by students, workers, and leftist groups, as well as broader countercultural movements like Black Power, the rise of feminism, and so on. The book also includes films that explore the splinter groups that engaged in violent urban guerilla struggles throughout the 1970s and 1980s, as the promise of widespread radical social transformation failed to materialize. It covers the Weathermen, the Black Liberation Army, and the Symbionese Liberation Army in the United States, the Red Army Faction in West Germany, and Japan and Italy's Red Brigades. Many of these movements were deeply connected with and expressed their values through art, literature, popular culture, and of course, cinema. Twelve authors, including academics and well-known film critics, deliver a diverse examination of how filmmakers around the world reacted to the political violence and resistance movements of the period and how this was expressed on screen. This includes looking at the financing, distribution, and screening of these films, audience and critical reaction, the attempted censorship or suppression of much of this work, and how directors and producers eluded these restrictions. Including over two hundred illustrations, the book examines filmmaking movements like the French, Japanese, German, and Yugoslavian New Waves, subgenres like spaghetti westerns, Italian poliziotteschi, Blaxploitation, and mondo movies, and films that reflect the values of specific movements like feminists, Vietnam War protesters, and Black militants. The work of influential and well-known political filmmakers such as Costa Gavras, Gillo Pontecorvo, and Glauber Rocha is examined side by side with grindhouse cinema and lesser-known titles by a host of all but forgotten filmmakers, including many from the Global South that are deserving of rediscovery.

propelled noir's appeal half a century on after its supposed decline. What has led film makers and series creators to rework given tropes? What debates continue to divide critics? And why are we as viewers so drawn to stories that often show us at our worst? Referencing a range of films and series citing critical work in the field while also challenging many of the assumptions made, this book sets out to advance our understanding of a subject that has fascinated audiences and academics alike. Theories relating to gender identity and neo noir's tricky generic status are discussed together with an evaluation of differing comic inflections and socio-political concerns concluding that although neo noir is capable of being both progressive and reactionary it also mobilises potentially radical questions about who we are and what we might be capable of.
