Second Language Writing Ken Hyland, 2019-07-04 Provides an accessible comprehensive and practical introduction to current theory and research in second language writing and their classroom applications Writing for Digital Media Brian Carroll, 2010-06-01 Writing for Digital Media teaches students how to write effectively for online audiences whether they are crafting a story for the website of a daily newspaper or a personal blog The lessons and exercises in each chapter help students build a solid understanding of the ways that the Internet has introduced new opportunities for dynamic storytelling as digital media have blurred roles of media producer consumer publisher and reader Using the tools and strategies discussed in this book students are able to use their insights into new media audiences to produce better content for digital formats and environments Fundamentally this book is about good writing clear precise accurate filled with energy and voice and aimed directly at an audience Writing for Digital Media also addresses all of the graphical multimedia hypertextual and interactive elements that come into play when writing for digital platforms Learning how to achieve balance and a careful deliberate blend of these elements is the other primary goal of this text Writing for Digital Media teaches students not only how to create content as writers but also how to think critically as a site manager or content developer might about issues such as graphic design site architecture and editorial consistency By teaching these new skill sets alongside writing fundamentals this book transforms students from writers who are simply able to post their stories online into engaging multimedia digital storytellers For additional resources and exercises visit the Companion Website for Writing for Digital Media at www.routledge.com/textbooks/9780415992015 Rhetorical Delivery as Technological Discourse Ben McCorkle, 2012-01-19 According to Ben McCorkle the rhetorical canon of delivery traditionally seen as the aspect of oratory pertaining to vocal tone inflection and physical gesture has undergone a period of renewal within the last few decades to include the array of typefaces color palettes graphics and other design elements used to convey a message to a chosen audience McCorkle posits that this redefinition while a noteworthy moment of modern rhetorical theory is just the latest instance in a historical pattern of interaction between rhetoric and technology In Rhetorical Delivery as Technological Discourse A Cross Historical Study McCorkle explores the symbiotic relationship between delivery and technologies of writing and communication Aiming to enhance historical understanding by demonstrating how changes in writing technology have altered our conception of delivery McCorkle reveals the ways in which oratory and the tools of written expression have directly affected one another throughout the ages To make his argument the author examines case studies from significant historical moments in the Western rhetorical tradition Beginning with the ancient Greeks McCorkle illustrates how the increasingly literate Greeks developed rhetorical theories intended for oratory that incorporated writerly tendencies diminishing delivery's once prime status in the process Also explored is the near eradication of rhetorical delivery in the mid fifteenth century the period of transition from late manuscript to early print culture and the implications of the burgeoning print culture during the nineteenth century McCorkle then investigates the declining interest in delivery as technology designed to replace the human voice and gesture became prominent at the beginning of the 1900s Situating scholarship on delivery within a broader postmodern structure he moves on to a discussion of the characteristics of contemporary hypertextual and digital communication and its role in reviving the canon while also anticipating the future of communication technologies the likely shifts in attitude toward delivery and the implications of both on the future of teaching rhetoric Rhetorical Delivery as Technological Discourse traces a long view perspective of rhetorical history to present readers a productive reading of the volatile treatment of delivery alongside the parallel history of writing and communication technologies This rereading will expand knowledge of the canon by not only offering the most thorough treatment of the history of rhetorical delivery available but also inviting conversation about the reciprocal impacts of rhetorical theory and written communication on each other throughout this history web the thermal energy of an object changes when heat flows into or out of the object you can use the following equation to calculate the change in thermal energy $\Delta E = mc\Delta T$ where ΔE is the change in thermal energy in joules (J), m is the mass in kilograms (kg), c is the specific heat in J/kg°C, and ΔT is the change in temperature in degrees Celsius (°C). In the equation q stands for the change in thermal energy.
