Digital switchover of television and radio in the United Kingdom Great Britain: Parliament: House of Lords: Select Committee on Communications, 2010-03-29 The Committee warns of a major public reaction against radio digital switchover scheduled for 2015 unless the Government make the case for switchover and keep the public informed about its impact. There is public confusion and industry uncertainty over radio switchover and concern that due to the lack of public information, people are still buying analogue radios which will be out of date in a few years' time. Retailers gave evidence stating that they are not getting adequate information on switchover plans so are unable to offer consumers accurate guidance when making purchases. The report also points out that car manufacturers are still fitting analogue radios in new cars and digital radios will not be fitted as standard in all cars until 2013. The radio switchover is contrasted with the television switchover programme, finding that the benefits of TV switchover were well understood. In contrast, surveys show that the public are generally happy with the present FM radio system and with the range of programmes that are provided. The Committee recommends urgent steps on a range of actions, including providing a detailed plan for universal digital radio coverage including how it is to be funded developing a policy for the long term use of FM devising a help scheme for radio switchover financed by general taxation rather than the BBC licence fee ensuring new digital car radios are fitted with a multi standard chip to enable their use overseas encouraging radio manufacturers and retailers to devise a sensible scrappage scheme for redundant analogue radios It is also noted that the BBC and Government disagree over whether the cost of universal digital coverage of their national stations can be met under the current licence fee The report says that it is essential that a firm and unambiguous plan for funding the completion of build out of the digital radio service is put in place as soon as possible The report concludes reversing current policy would be unproductive given the amount of investment in digital radio already and while the switchover in 2015 is ambitious a change of target date is not favoured at this stage

Commercial Culture Leo Bogart, 2017-09-29 American mass media are the world's most diverse rich and free Their dazzling resources variety and influence arouse envy in other countries Their failures are commonly excused on the grounds that they are creatures of the market that they give people what they want Commercial Culture focuses not on the glories of the media but on what is wrong with them and why and how they may be made better This powerful critique of American mass communication highlights four trends that sound an urgent call for reform the blurring of distinctions among traditional media and between individual and mass communication the increasing concentration of media control in a disturbingly small number of powerful organizations the shift from advertisers to consumers as the source of media revenues and the growing confusion of information and entertainment of the real and the imaginary The future direction of the media Leo Bogart contends should not be left to market forces alone He shows how the public's appetite for media differs from other demands the market is left to satisfy because of how profoundly the media shape the public's character and values Bogart concludes that a world of new communications technology requires a coherent national media policy respectful of the American tradition of free expression and subject to vigorous public scrutiny and debate Commercial Culture is a comprehensive analysis of the media as they evolve in a technological age It will appeal to general readers interested in mass communications as well as professionals and scholars studying American mass media
