

Different Types of Shoppers

Shopping is usually stereotyped as a female pastime. How many times are commercials shown where men are sitting around watching a sporting event on television and their wives or girlfriends are out taking advantage of a sale? Women often squeal over shopping and men often avoid it. However, everyone has to shop, if by necessity only. We all need food to survive, and we have to clothe ourselves and furnish our homes. While seemingly trite in nature, shopping is actually one of the factors that helps to fuel economies.

People shop in a variety of different way and for millions of different items every day. The availability of online shopping has even allowed more people access to be powerful consumers from their own homes. If you have ever sat and people watched at the mall, like I have, it is easy to pick out trends in shoppers after awhile. While most everyone shops, I have narrowed down the different types of shoppers into four categories: bargain shoppers, trend shoppers, necessity shoppers, and returns shoppers. Bargain shoppers are shoppers who are constantly on the look for deals and great buys.

These shoppers talk about shopping all the time. If complimented on an item of apparel, the bargain shopper, instead of saying thank you and smiling, will quickly ramble off where she got it and how much she paid for it. "Target. $1.99. Couldn't pass it up. " Bargain shoppers shop as a hobby, not necessarily because they really need something. They shop at least once a week and try to hit as many stores as possible, but if they have time, they will stop in a store every day to buy something that it on sale or to compare prices on items they are considering buying.

Bargain shoppers shop at all kinds of stores from major department stores to small privately owned retail shops. They are also the first customers at garage sales, scouring for great bargains and often bargaining for even lower prices. They will also come back on the last day of the sale to try to find a deal on what is left. They are also the shoppers who will try to buy the display items or get a discount for a missing button. They never pay full price. They also visit outlet malls and will drive great distances to see what kind of bargains are offered at different shopping venues.

Completely opposite from the bargain shoppers are the trend shoppers. These shoppers are always on the lookout for the new things. You will find the trend shoppers shopping at all of the hot, youthful stores.

They seek popular items that many times go out of style rather quickly, so these shoppers are also shopping quite a bit. Some trend shoppers spend big money. If complimented on their attire, trend shoppers will reply something along the lines of, "totally hot, don't you think so? I got this in NYC at this exclusive little boutique that Paris Hilton shops in. It cost

Essays on Consumer Search and Interlocking Directorates Silva Deželan,2001 Information is crucial to make good decisions but obtaining and providing information often comes at a cost Consumers and firms both need to balance these costs and benefits of obtaining and providing information in order to make the best decisions The research in this thesis investigates several questions that pertain to the acquisition and provision of information In the first part of this thesis it is assumed that consumers are not fully informed about the prices or availability of a product they want to buy Consumers can search for information but this comes at a cost At the same time shops can influence these costs In the first two studies in this part shops have the possibility to advertise An advertisement provides information to consumers and reduces the search costs We investigate among other things the pricing behavior of shops and the relation between search and advertising The third study in this part of the thesis considers the location choice of shops Locating together in a shopping mall reduces the search costs of consumers This increases the competition between shops and lowers the prices but we show that at the same time the sales volume increases The total effect of locating together on profits is generally positive The second part of this thesis considers director ties also named interlocks A director who has several directorships in different firms can serve as an information bridge between the different firms At the same time interlocking directors are busy and form a homogenous group Data from the Netherlands show that in The Netherlands the positive information providing effect of interlocks is outweighed by a negative busyness and homogenous group effect Online Shopping Intentions Anne Fota,2022-05-13 In this book the drivers and barriers that motivate or inhibit consumers to participate in e commerce are investigated differentiating between the e commerce subareas of cross border e commerce voice commerce conversational commerce and rental commerce This specification is both scientifically and practically relevant as the different subareas of e commerce serve different consumer needs and motivations resulting in a diverse set of antecedents to form consumers online shopping intentions Both the respective literature reviews as well as the empirical results of six conducted research studies illustrate the relevance and ubiquity of the four subareas of e commerce in consumers everyday online shopping On the one hand the results represent an important basis for marketing and consumer research to support a better understanding of the behavioral psychological motives of consumers and better evaluate correlations in shopping behavior On the other hand practitioners benefit from the newly gained insights as online retailers in particular can use them to better adapt their offers to consumer needs and optimize consumers online shopping experience
