Myanmar has fit into the broad patterns of U S foreign policy and yet has never been fully integrated into diplomatic efforts in the region of Southeast Asia When Burma a British colony since the nineteenth century achieved independence in 1948 the United States feared that the country might be the first Southeast Asian nation to fall to the communists and it embarked on a series of efforts to prevent this In 1962 General Ne Win who toppled the government in a coup d tat established an authoritarian socialist military junta that severely limited diplomatic contact and led to a period in which the primary American diplomatic concern became Burma s increasing opium production Ne Win s rule ended at least officially in 1988 when the Burmese people revolted against the oppressive military government Aung San Suu Kyi emerged as the charismatic leader of the opposition and was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in 1991 Amid these great changes in policy and outlook Burma Myanmar remained fiercely nonaligned and under Ne Win isolationist The limited diplomatic exchange that resulted meant that the state was often a frustrating puzzle to U S officials Clymer explores attitudes toward Burma later Myanmar from anxious anticomunism during the Cold War to interventions to stop drug trafficking to debates in Congress the White House and the Department of State over how to respond to the emergence of the opposition movement in the late 1980s The junta s brutality its refusal to relinquish power and its imprisonment of opposition leaders resulted in public and Congressional pressure to try to change the regime Indeed Aung San Suu Kyi s rise to prominence fueled the new foreign policy debate that was focused on human rights and in that climate Burma Myanmar held particularly large symbolic importance for U S policy makers Congressional and public opinion favored sanctions while U S presidents and their administrations were more cautious Clymer s account concludes with President Obama s visits in 2012 and 2014 and visits to the United States by Aung San Suu Kyi and President Thein Sein which marked the establishment of a new warmer relationship with a relatively open Myanmar
