that serve as a means of making sense of our own world. Such creative and interactive activity is arguably patently religious. This book examines the nature of sacred space in virtual contexts, technology as a vehicle for sacred texts, who we are when we go online, what rituals have in common with games and how they work online, what happens to community when people worship online, how religious worlds and virtual worlds nurture similar desires. Rachel Wagner suggests that whilst our engagement with virtual reality can be viewed as a form of religious activity, today's virtual religion marks a radical departure from traditional religious practice: it is ephemeral, transient, rapid, disposable, hyper-individualized, hybrid and in an ongoing state of flux.

Understanding European Integration R. Pavananthi Vembulu, 2003. In the background of new questions of identity, culture and community emerged after the Maastricht Treaty, this book explores the European integration process since it throws immanent challenge to the existing theoretical paradigms such as nationalism and globalization. Drawing influence from this intellectual climate, this book tries to understand the integration process within the cultural history of Europe. The study structured itself along three axes. First, it circled down on the problematic over defining what Europe means. Here the efforts were on to highlight the constant flux and contingent nature of the definition of Europe. Second, how this contingent nature of Europe has compelled the European Union to no longer skirt away the question of identity if it is to consolidate the process and expand its boundary towards East by focusing upon the cultural policy of the Union. The study brought forth the various efforts of the Union, particularly the European Commission, to transform the loyalties and identities of people from the national crucible to a broader European spectrum. Thirdly, the study critically evaluates these policy initiatives and highlights how they are structured around the nineteenth-century colonial discourse of Europe.
