November Day 14: Algebra-Chinese History

Step 1 (10 min): Write on separate cards: numbers, symbols, and measurements that are the foundation of our language including numbers and the other measurements.

Step 2 (10 min): Research the early history using all the cards you wrote out in Step 1. Use the numbers to guide you. What is our oldest clock system?

What is the earliest clock we know of?

1. Explain the difference between the following two types of sampling methods: simple random sampling and systematic sampling. In what circumstances would you use each method? In what circumstances would you use both methods in the same study? Give an example of a study in which you might use both methods.	Simple random sampling is a method of selecting a sample from a population where every individual has an equal chance of being selected. Systematic sampling is a method of selecting a sample from a population where individuals are selected at regular intervals. Simple random sampling is used when the population is homogeneous and the sample size is small. Systematic sampling is used when the population is heterogeneous and the sample size is large.
2. Explain the difference between the following two types of sampling methods: stratified random sampling and cluster sampling. In what circumstances would you use each method? In what circumstances would you use both methods in the same study? Give an example of a study in which you might use both methods.	Stratified random sampling is a method of selecting a sample from a population where the population is divided into strata and individuals are selected from each stratum. Cluster sampling is a method of selecting a sample from a population where the population is divided into clusters and individuals are selected from one or more clusters. Stratified random sampling is used when the population is heterogeneous and the sample size is small. Cluster sampling is used when the population is heterogeneous and the sample size is large.
3. Explain the difference between the following two types of sampling methods: convenience sampling and judgment sampling. In what circumstances would you use each method? In what circumstances would you use both methods in the same study? Give an example of a study in which you might use both methods.	Convenience sampling is a method of selecting a sample from a population where individuals are selected based on their availability. Judgment sampling is a method of selecting a sample from a population where individuals are selected based on the researcher's judgment. Convenience sampling is used when the population is heterogeneous and the sample size is small. Judgment sampling is used when the population is heterogeneous and the sample size is large.
4. Explain the difference between the following two types of sampling methods: quota sampling and snowball sampling. In what circumstances would you use each method? In what circumstances would you use both methods in the same study? Give an example of a study in which you might use both methods.	Quota sampling is a method of selecting a sample from a population where individuals are selected based on their characteristics. Snowball sampling is a method of selecting a sample from a population where individuals are selected based on their social network. Quota sampling is used when the population is heterogeneous and the sample size is small. Snowball sampling is used when the population is heterogeneous and the sample size is large.

The Routledge Handbook of Language Testing Glenn Fulcher, Luke Harding, 2021-12-15

This second edition of The Routledge Handbook of Language Testing provides an updated and comprehensive account of the area of language testing and assessment. The volume brings together 35 authoritative articles divided into ten sections written by 51 leading specialists from around the world. There are five entirely new chapters covering the four skills: reading, writing, listening, and speaking, as well as a new entry on corpus linguistics and language testing. The remaining 30 chapters have been revised, often extensively or entirely rewritten, with new authorship teams at the helm, reflecting new generations of expertise in the field. With a dedicated section on technology in language testing reflecting current trends in the field, the Handbook also includes an extended epilogue written by Harding and Fulcher contemplating what has changed between the first and second editions and charting a trajectory for the field of language testing and assessment. Providing a basis for discussion, project work, and the design of both language tests themselves and related validation research, this Handbook represents an invaluable resource for students, researchers, and practitioners working in language testing and assessment and the wider
