What Happens in London Kristina Adams, 2017-05-03 How far would you go for love Starting your own business isn t easy but this time Hollie s determined to succeed She s got the drive she s got the moral support and she s making an outfit for a global superstar But chasing your dreams comes with obstacles Will she overcome them or will her depression and anxiety take over Since Fayth returned from New York as a pseudo celebrity the family pub is firmly in the black And as far as her dad s concerned that makes it the perfect time to sell Her sister isn t happy Fayth is With the pub sold and her divorce finalised for the first time in her life she can do whatever she wants Just as soon as she figures out what that is Everything s looking up until someone they love is injured in a life changing accident Will things ever be the same again Integrative Therapy Maja O'Brien, Gaie Houston, 2007-01-24 The book is comprehensive and extensively researched and referenced The last chapter contains some excellent training resources for trainers of counsellors psychotherapists I would therefore endorse it as a useful textbook especially as there is an excellent in depth example of an assessment form and guidance on how this can be used for trainees These were useful revision points to me as an experienced counsellor The Independent Practitioner The book would be useful to practitioners who want to start thinking outside the box of a particular orientation It is also aimed at students and trainers the last 40 pages in particular are full of practical training exercises Overall I would recommend it as a well reasoned argument for therapy to be rooted in an integrative base Therapy Today Throughout the book it is assumed that we can learn from each other and that we need to whatever orientation we were trained in in the service of the client I find this pragmatic approach open and refreshing in a period when some of us have polarised around the what works best debate Both authors are experienced practitioners and trainers and their commitment to integrative counselling and psychotherapy shines through AUCC Journal Integration rather than a single theory has become accepted and widely recommended as a way forward in psychotherapy and counselling Integrative Therapy Second Edition a timely and innovative guide for practitioners is based on the view that training and practice methods should be evaluated for their usefulness to the client instead of their adherence to a particular model Drawing from research on therapy process and outcome and on human development respectively the authors highlight striking similarities between the change processes involved in these two areas of study The findings provide a basis for an adaptable framework for integrative practice The authors pinpoint what is common as well as what is different in various approaches using case illustrations to make comparisons throughout between the three major models psychodynamic humanistic existential and cognitive behavioural What emerges is the central importance of the therapeutic relationship in the process of change how to be with clients as opposed to what to do Fully revised and updated this Second Edition includes new material on neuroscience and practitioner oriented research methodology showing how the processes of doing research and doing therapy have many things in common The book aims to cultivate a spirit of willingness amongst therapists trained in one model to learn from colleagues trained in others It also features exercises to support its use on courses and will thus be invaluable to trainees of counselling psychotherapy and counselling psychology Maja O'Brien is a chartered counselling psychologist and psychotherapist supervisor and trainer based in Oxford and a Principal Lecturer on the Doctorate in Psychotherapy by Professional Studies run jointly by the Metanoia Institute and Middlesex University Gaie Houston is a writer UKCP registered psychotherapist and senior lecturer at The Gestalt Centre London

Competence and Self-Care in Counselling and Psychotherapy Gerrie Hughes, 2014-02-24 What is it that makes a counsellor or psychotherapist competent In Competence and Self Care in Counselling and Psychotherapy Gerrie Hughes offers a framework for understanding what being competent means for individual practitioners both generally and in moment by moment work with clients Divided into two sections Part One The Competent Self and Part Two Care of the Self the book explores care and replenishment of the self as an essential requirement for maintaining competence The Competence Framework presented here suggests that the three elements of Practitioner Client and Context are essential factors for making good therapeutic choices as well as offering a structure for reflection either individually or in supervision The eight principles that elaborate on these elements provide a route to explore competence that is relevant for any theoretical orientation and appropriate for practitioners at any stage The reader is encouraged to make their own exploration of a number of factors that influence competence and to identify development of the self as both a necessary preparation for therapeutic work and as a continuing outcome of being a therapist In addition Hughes emphasises the importance of having a sound ethical framework and utilising professional structures as well as examining the contribution of supervision to the development and maintenance of competence This book is an ideal choice for counsellors psychotherapists supervisors and trainers who wish to maintain a robust standard of practice and for those employing them
