A Prosentential Theory of Truth Dorothy Grover,2014-07-14 In a number of influential articles published since 1972 Dorothy Grover has developed the prosentential theory of truth Brought together and published with a new introduction these essays are even more impressive as a group than they were as single contributions to philosophy and linguistics Denying that truth has an explanatory role the prosentential theory does not address traditional truth issues like belief meaning and justification Instead it focuses on the grammatical role of the truth predicate and asserts that it is true is a prosentence functioning much as a pronoun does Grover defends the theory by indicating how it can handle notorious paradoxes like the Liar as well as by analyzing some English truth usages The introduction to the volume surveys traditional theories of truth including correspondence pragmatic and coherence theories It discusses the essays to come and finally considers the implications of the prosentential theory for other theories Despite the fact that the prosentential theory dismisses the nature of truth as a red herring Grover shows that there are important aspects of traditional truth theories that prosentential theorists have the option of endorsing Originally published in 1992 The Princeton Legacy Library uses the latest print on demand technology to again make available previously out of print books from the distinguished backlist of Princeton University Press These editions preserve the original texts of these important books while presenting them in durable paperback and hardcover editions The goal of the Princeton Legacy Library is to vastly increase access to the rich scholarly heritage found in the thousands of books published by Princeton University Press since its founding in 1905
