

“This Could Be Heaven and This Could Be Hell”

The question of what happens to us after we die has plagued humanity throughout history. There are many different ideas, many different theories, about “what comes next” for us.

This assignment asks you to imagine that Heaven and Hell are not only real, but individual to each of us. In this expository essay, your task is describe how your own personal Heaven OR your own unique Hell would look, feel, and function.

The description of your Heaven or Hell should detail how this place would appeal to (or, in the case of Hell, how it would assault) your senses – what would it look, sound, smell, taste, feel like? How would it engage (or dull/torment) your emotions? How would it stimulate (or dull/frustrate) your intellect and satisfy (or offend) your morals and values? How would you spend your days there? What people, objects and activities would be central in your Heaven or Hell, and which would be forbidden? Most importantly, what about this place would make it uniquely yours – why would it not have the same value or impact on or for other people?

The point of this piece of expository writing is to see how vividly you can imagine and describe your own ideas of absolute perfection, and complete and utter torture, in a relatively short amount of space.

These assignments must be 2-3 typed pages* long and are due in class on:

Hell's Destruction Catherine Ella Laufer,2016-04-22 The credal affirmation he descended to the dead has attracted a plethora of views over the centuries and many Christians today struggle to explain the meaning of these words This book explores various interpretations of the doctrine of Christ s descent to the dead both within particular historical contexts and within contemporary theology Laufer argues that the descensus clause Christ s descent is integral to Christian faith specifically to the doctrine of the incarnation If we are to affirm that in Christ God became truly human then that affirmation must include his sharing in the state of being dead that is the ultimate consequence of being human Laufer concludes that since the Son has experienced genuine human death and the separation from God which is the essence of hell there is no longer any human condition from which God is absent either in this life or in eternity Christ s descent means that he is truly hell s destruction Drawing on a treasure trove of writings from the western theological tradition including Luther Calvin Maurice Balthasar Moltmann and others and attending to historical theological exegetical philosophical and pastoral issues this book explores an often ignored doctrine which lies at the core of Christian life death and faith Essays, Civil and Moral Francis Bacon,1909 Essays, Civil and Moral Aeropagitica Religio Medici Francis Bacon,John Milton,2010-01-01
