Watts, 2011-03-29 By understanding how and when common sense fails we can improve our understanding of the present and better plan for the future Drawing on the latest scientific research along with a wealth of historical and contemporary examples Watts shows how common sense reasoning and history conspire to mislead us into believing that we understand more about the world of human behavior than we do and in turn why attempts to predict manage or manipulate social and economic systems so often go awry. It seems obvious for example that people respond to incentives yet policy makers and managers alike frequently fail to anticipate how people will respond to the incentives they create Social trends often seem to be driven by certain influential people yet marketers have been unable to identify these influencers in advance And although successful products or companies always seem in retrospect to have succeeded because of their unique qualities predicting the qualities of the next hit product or hot company is notoriously difficult even for experienced professionals Watts argument has important implications in politics business and marketing as well as in science and everyday life Beyond open access: visions for open evaluation of scientific papers by post-publication peer review Nikolaus Kriegeskorte, Diana Deca, A scientific publication system needs to provide two basic services access and evaluation The traditional publication system restricts the access to papers by requiring payment and it restricts the evaluation of papers by relying on just 2 4 pre publication peer reviews and by keeping the reviews secret As a result the current system suffers from a lack of quality and transparency of the peer review evaluation process and the only immediately available indication of a new paper's quality is the prestige of the journal it appeared in Open access is now widely accepted as desirable and is slowly beginning to become a reality However the second essential element evaluation has received less attention Open evaluation an ongoing post publication process of transparent peer review and rating of papers promises to address the problems of the current system However it is unclear how exactly such a system should be designed The evaluation system steers the attention of the scientific community and thus the very course of science For better or worse the most visible papers determine the direction of each field and guide funding and public policy decisions Evaluation therefore is at the heart of the entire endeavor of science As the number of scientific publications explodes evaluation and selection will only gain importance A grand challenge of our time therefore is to design the future system by which we evaluate papers and decide which ones deserve broad attention So far scientists have left the design of the evaluation process to journals and publishing companies However the steering mechanism of science should be designed by scientists The cognitive computational and brain sciences are best prepared to take on this task which will involve social and psychological considerations software design and modeling of the network of scientific papers and their interrelationships This Research Topic in Frontiers in Computational Neuroscience collects visions for a future system of open evaluation Because critical arguments about the current system abound these papers will focus on constructive ideas and comprehensive designs for open evaluation systems Design decisions include Should the reviews and ratings be entirely transparent or should some aspects be kept secret Should other information such as paper downloads be included in the evaluation How can scientific objectivity be strengthened and political motivations weakened in the future system Should the system include signed and authenticated reviews and ratings Should the evaluation be an ongoing process such that promising papers are more deeply evaluated How can we bring science and statistics to the evaluation process e g should rating averages come with error bars How should the evaluative information about each paper e g peer ratings be combined to prioritize the literature Should different individuals and organizations be able to define their own evaluation formulae e g weighting ratings according to different criteria How can we efficiently transition toward the future system Ideally the future system will derive its authority from a scientific literature on community based open evaluation We hope that these papers will provide a starting point

Origins, Foundations, Sustainability and Trip Lines of Good Governance: Archaeological and Historical Considerations Gary M. Feinman, Richard Edward Blanton, Stephen A. Kowalewski, Lane Fargher Navarro, 2022-10-05 Until recently scholarly consensus across the social sciences and history adhered to the view that the incorporation of citizen voice in governance e g democracy was an entirely Western phenomenon that mostly is a product of the emergence of rational thought and the modern world These views are now empirically questioned and subject to serious reconsideration Yet even researchers who recognize a broader temporal span for democratic or good governance draw fundamental distinctions between these political forms in the past and present Building on the collective action theories in particular those focused on fiscal financing the editors of this Research Topic outline fundamental characteristics internal financing equitable taxation checks on power and a functioning bureaucracy at the core of good governance which are neither the sole project of the contemporary West nor tied to any specific ideological construct or form of leadership Even elections can no longer be conceived as assurance of good governance At this time of global challenges to democracy understanding the comparative history of good governments their core institutions how they worked their foundations what led to their downfalls and the factors that prompted their sustenance or their collapses are extremely important to document The historical trends and coactive processes that underpinned those human cooperative arrangements which fostered growth and general well being require comparative focus if we are to draw on the wealth of human history to help craft better governance in the future and forestall the tripwires that lead to its failures We welcome contributions which focus on Diachronic examinations of changes in the fiscal foundations of governance and their impacts on governance Comparative analysis of governmental variability and its relationship to collective action and its fiscal financing Cross temporal studies of shifts in the degree of good governance and relations to inequality sustainability bureaucracy public goods and services and fiscal financing The importance of social compacts and contracts in representative government and how these are sustained and break down Alternatives and supplements to elections as means of assessing subaltern voices The relationship between governance and inequality over time and across space Differences in modes of political collapse and their relationship to governance fiscal financing and responses of principals The role of public ritual in good versus autocratic governments Variance in communication and computation in good versus autocratic governments The relationship between comparative governance and the uses and spatial distributions of community urban space residential and non residential architecture sprawl versus compact settlement The relationship between comparative governance and neighborhood organization Was there one or many episodes of enlightenment The relationship between governance and coactive processes including considerations of demographic growth patterns of migration well being economic growth The relationship between slave labor and governance spot resources and governance Non hierarchical and egalitarian forms of governance in non state societies Indigenous inspirations and influences on the Constitution of the United States Collective action and establishment of early cities Our aim for this Research Topic is to compile a series of research essays drawn from a broad cross regional and cross temporal sample of historical settings to explore issues and themes relevant to the history and processes that have been at the heart of good governance The Global Illusion of Citizen Protection Robert Mandel, 2018-07-11 This book comprehensively analyzes the global illusion of citizen protection so common today This text helps students understand a central puzzle in human security which has two distinct components 1 although it might be reasonable to assume that political leaders threat responses would almost always have a decent chance of safeguarding the mass public sometimes they do not exhibiting rhetoric reality gaps and purely symbolic gestures and 2 although the wealth of security information available to the mass public would seem to provide them with the opportunity to gain almost always an accurate picture of existing dangers and state threat responses sometimes citizens evaluation of their own safety is grossly distorted exhibiting an overly extreme sense of helplessness about ongoing threat and an overly extreme sense of skepticism about state protection At first glance it is difficult to comprehend fully why states would often select ineffective means of protecting their citizens assuming the availability of other options when it appears that there are incentives for them to choose effective ones particularly within societies with responsive forms of government and why citizens would often mischaracterize their own security predicament when they have a direct on the ground view of their plight and seem to have incentives to view their own safety accurately In exploring these puzzles through detailed international case study analysis this text investigation consciously deviates from some prevailing orthodox assumptions It call into question the desirability of the political centrality of state authority and of the prevailing economic and cultural norms in today s world opening up serious questions about when and how existing structures and values contribute to increasing rather than decreasing human insecurity for the average world citizen
