McKay, 2021-09-28 Aligned with the National Association for the Education of Young Children s Principles of Effective Family Engagement this book helps early childhood administrators create effective family engagement policies that work For each of the six key principles this accessible guide walks leaders through the process of creating effective policy to engage families in their program Filled with workable documents and templates to thoroughly scaffold the entire process administrators will finish the work ready to implement the policies created or build a plan tailored to their specific program Designed for schools discouraged by the lack of engagement with all families this book helps leaders strengthen the bond among home school and community The Oxford Handbook of Assessment Policy and Practice in Music Education, Volume 2 Timothy Brophy, 2019-01-02 In the music classroom instructors who hope to receive aid are required to provide data on their classroom programs Due to the lack of reliable valid large scale assessments of student achievement in music however music educators in schools that accept funds face a considerable challenge in finding a way to measure student learning in their classrooms From Australia to Taiwan to the Netherlands music teachers experience similar struggles in the quest for a definitive assessment resource that can be used by both music educators and researchers In this two volume Handbook contributors from across the globe come together to provide an authority on the assessment measurement and evaluation of student learning in music The Handbook s first volume emphasizes international and theoretical perspectives on music education assessment in the major world regions This volume also looks at technical aspects of measurement in music and outlines situations where theoretical foundations can be applied to the development of tests in music The Handbook s second volume offers a series of practical and US focused approaches to music education assessment Chapters address assessment in different types of US classrooms how to assess specific skills or requirements and how assessment can be used in tertiary and music teacher education classrooms Together both volumes of The Oxford Handbook of Assessment in Music Education pave the way forward for music educators and researchers in the field

Debates on Early Childhood Policies and Practices Theodora Papatheodorou, 2012-05-16 Globally Early Years policies and documents have set out aspirational outcomes and benefits for children their families and the wider society These policies have emphasised the place of early childhood provision within the wider global agenda by tackling inequality and disadvantage early on in children s lives However these strategies have also raised further debates regarding the way they have informed and shaped curricula frameworks and pedagogical approaches The international team of contributors to this book argue that if these issues are not explicitly acknowledged understood critiqued and negotiated emerging policies and documents may potentially lead to disadvantaging marginalising and even pathologising certain childhoods Divided into two parts the volume demonstrates the dialectic nature of both policy and practice The chapters in this wide ranging text explore and articulate the philosophical premises and values that underpin current early childhood policy curricula and pedagogies explicitly acknowledge and articulate some of potential conflicts and challenges they present provide examples of divergent and creative pedagogical thinking highlight opportunities for enabling pedagogical cultures and encounters Debates on Early Childhood Policies and Practices is aimed at a wide readership including academics and researchers in early years education policy makers undergraduate and postgraduate students practitioners and early childhood professionals

Food Policy and Practice in Early Childhood Education and Care Francesca Vaghi, 2023-11-24 This book is about food and feeding in early childhood education and care offering an exploration of the intersection of children s food education family intervention and public health policies The notion of good food for children is often communicated as a matter of common sense by policymakers and public health authorities yet the social material and practical aspects of feeding children are far from straightforward Drawing on a detailed ethnographic study conducted in a London nursery and children s centre this book provides a close examination of the practices of childcare practitioners children and parents asking how the universalism of policy and bureaucracy fits with the particularism of feeding and eating in the early years Looking at the unintended consequences that emerged in the field such as contradictory public health messaging and arbitrary policy interventions the book reveals the harmful assumptions about disadvantaged groups that are perpetuated in policy discourse and challenges the constructs of individual choice and responsibility as main determinants of health Children s food practices at the nursery are examined to explore the notion that whilst for adults it is what children eat that often matters most to children it is how they eat that is more important This book contributes to a growing body of literature evidencing how children s food is a contested domain in which power relations are continuously negotiated This raises questions not only on how children can be included in policy beyond a tokenistic involvement but also on what children's well being might mean beyond the biomedical sphere The book will particularly appeal to students and scholars in food and health food policy childhood studies and medical anthropology Policymakers and non governmental bodies working in the domains of children's food and early years policies will also find this book of interest
