H. Smith,2013-12-04 The present volume advances a recent historiographical turn towards the intersection of early modern philosophy and the life sciences by bringing together many of its leading scholars to present the contributions of important but often neglected figures such as Ralph Cudworth Nehemiah Grew Francis Glisson Hieronymus Fabricius ab Aquapendente Georg Ernst Stahl Juan Gallego de la Serna Nicholas Hartsoeker Henry More as well as more familiar figures such as Descartes Spinoza Leibniz Malebranche and Kant The contributions to this volume are organized in accordance with the particular problems that living beings and living nature posed for early modern philosophy the problem of life in general whether it constitutes something ontologically distinct at all or whether it can ultimately be exhaustively comprehended in the same manner as the rest the problem of the structure of living beings by which we understand not just bare anatomy but also physiological processes such as irritability motion digestion and so on the problem of generation which might be included alongside digestion and other vital processes were it not for the fact that it presented such an exceptional riddle to philosophers since antiquity namely the riddle of coming into being out of apparent or real non being and finally the problem of natural order Study Guide for CTET Paper 1 (Class 1 - 5 teachers) with Past Questions 4th Edition Disha Experts, The new edition of the book Study Guide for CTET Paper 1 English Class 1 5 teachers English 5th edition has been updated with the CTET July 2013 to Sep 2016 Solved question papers The languages covered in the book are English 1st language and Hindi 2nd language The book provides separate sections for

Ontologies and Ontology Networks Zlatan Dragisic, 2017-08-22 The World Wide Web contains large amounts of data and in most cases this data has no explicit structure The lack of structure makes it difficult for automated agents to understand and use such data A step towards a more structured World Wide Web is the Semantic Web which aims at introducing semantics to data on the World Wide Web One of the key technologies in this endeavour are ontologies which provide a means for modeling a domain of interest and are used for search and integration of data In recent years many ontologies have been developed To be able to use multiple ontologies it is necessary to align them i e find inter ontology relationships However developing and aligning ontologies is not an easy task and it is often the case that ontologies and their alignments are incorrect and incomplete This can be a problem for semantically enabled applications Incorrect and incomplete ontologies and alignments directly influence the quality of the results of such applications as wrong results can be returned and correct results can be missed This thesis focuses on the problem of completing ontologies and ontology networks The contributions of the thesis are threefold First we address the issue of completing the is a structure and alignment in ontologies and ontology networks We have formalized the problem of completing the is a structure in ontologies as an abductive reasoning problem and developed algorithms as well as systems for dealing with the problem With respect to the completion of alignments we have studied system performance in the Ontology Alignment Evaluation Initiative a yearly evaluation campaign for ontology alignment systems We have also addressed the scalability of ontology matching which is one of the current challenges by developing an approach for reducing the search space when generating the alignment Second high quality completion requires user involvement As users time and effort are a limited resource we address the issue of limiting and facilitating user interaction in the completion process We have conducted a broad study of state of the art ontology alignment systems and identified different issues related to the process We have also conducted experiments to assess the impact of user errors in the completion process While the completion of ontologies and ontology networks can be done at any point in the life cycle of ontologies and ontology networks some of the issues can be addressed already in the development phase The third contribution of the thesis addresses this by introducing ontology completion and ontology alignment into an existing ontology development methodology
