Food proteins are of great interest not only because of their nutritional importance and their functionality in foods but also for their detrimental effects. Although proteins from milk, meats including fish and poultry, eggs, cereals, legumes and oilseeds have been the traditional sources of protein in the human diet, potentially any proteins from a biological source could serve as a food protein. The primary role of protein in the diet is to provide the building materials for the synthesis of muscle and other tissues and they play a critical role in many biological processes. They are also responsible for food texture, color and flavor. Today food proteins are extracted, modified and incorporated into processed foods to impart specific functional properties. They can also have adverse effects in the diet. Proteins such as walnuts, pecans, almonds and cashews, soybean, wheat, milk, egg, crustacean and fish proteins can be powerful allergens for some people. Applied Food Protein Chemistry is an applied reference which reviews
