Unnatural Selections Daylanne K. English, 2005-12-15 Challenging conventional constructions of the Harlem Renaissance and American modernism Daylanne English links writers from both movements to debates about eugenics in the Progressive Era She argues that in the 1920s the form and content of writings by figures as disparate as W E B Du Bois T S Eliot Gertrude Stein and Nella Larsen were shaped by anxieties regarding immigration migration and intraracial breeding English's interdisciplinary approach brings together the work of those canonical writers with relatively neglected literary social scientific and visual texts She examines antilynching plays by Angelina Weld Grimké as well as the provocative writings of white female eugenics field workers English also analyzes the Crisis magazine as a family album filtering uplift through eugenics by means of photographic documentation of an ever improving black race English suggests that current scholarship often misreads early twentieth century visual literary and political culture by applying contemporary social and moral standards to the past Du Bois she argues was actually more of a eugenicist than Eliot Through such reconfiguration of the modern period English creates an allegory for the American present because eugenics was in its time widely accepted as a reasonable progressive ideology we need to consider the long term implications of contemporary genetic engineering fertility enhancement and control and legislation promoting or discouraging family growth Selections from the Religious and Literary Writings of John H.
