Prendre Soins Des Proches Aidants :

Prendre soin de soi tout en prenant soin d'un proche malade Stéphanie Mathieu, 2017 Le vieillissement de la population est un phénomène bien documenté dans les pays occidentaux. Celui-ci entraîne une hausse du nombre de personnes en perte d'autonomie ce qui mobilise un nombre accru de proches aidants qui sont appelés à fournir divers types de soutien. Or la tendance à la hausse du nombre de personnes exerçant le rôle de proche aidant engendre plusieurs préoccupations. En effet l'exercice de ce rôle peut s'avérer exigeant aux niveaux physique, psychologique, social et économique. Il est donc pertinent de s'intéresser aux meilleures façons de soutenir les proches aidants. Le présent essai se veut une réflexion sur une intervention de groupe destinée à ces derniers qui a été proposée et réalisée au CLSC de Limoilou du CIUSSS de la Capitale Nationale l'automne 2015. Il présente d'abord les enjeux et les facteurs explicatifs liés à l'isolement des proches aidants avant d'exposer plusieurs approches qui sont déjà utilisées dans le but de le diminuer voire de l'éviter. Par la suite les objectifs théoriques et les stratégies utilisées lors de l'intervention sont expliqués. Les résultats, autant en ce qui a trait aux objectifs d'intervention qu'aux rétroactions des participants sont présentés puis discutés. Enfin une réflexion orientée à la fois sur la pertinence des stratégies d'intervention utilisées ainsi que sur le thème d'intervention est proposée.

Prendre soin d'un proche âgé Serge

CLEMENT, Jean-Pierre LAVOIE, 2013-03-15 L'accroissement de la longévité au-delà de 65 ans et la remise en cause de l'action de l'État providence posent avec acuité la question des solidarités familiales à l'égard des proches âgés. Au Québec l'État tente de transférer certaines de ses missions aux familles en France on a tenté de résoudre des problèmes de chômage en développant sur le marché la dépendance des emplois de proximité au risque d'une déprofessionnalisation et d'un enfermement des femmes dans la domesticité. Le souci de limiter les dépenses publiques en matière de santé autorise-t-il de demander aux familles un investissement encore plus grand alors qu'elles fournissent déjà environ 80% de l'aide et que les transformations sociales en cours ne favorisent pas toujours ce fonctionnement familial. Cet ouvrage propose un état des lieux de l'aide familiale, la vieillesse fragilisée dans deux contextes culturels différents la France et le Québec, des finitions sociales de l'aide, des dynamiques familiales, politiques de la vieillesse, articulation entre services professionnels et engagement familial. Des contributions importantes et originales de chercheurs français et québécois permettent ici de saisir les grandeurs et les limites de ces solidarités de dédier les zones d'ombre, encore explorer, de questionner les pratiques et les politiques en direction des personnes âgées et de leur famille. Serge Clement est sociologue ingénieur CNRS au Centre Interdisciplinaire de Recherches Urbaines et Sociologiques Toulouse. Jean-Pierre Lavoie est chercheur à l'Institut de gérontologie sociale du Québec. Mise en vente le 26 août 2005. Préface de Jean-Claude Henrard.
