Background: The purpose of this study was to determine the prevalence of self-reported hearing impairment in a community sample of older adults.

Abstract: The purpose of this study was to investigate the effect of a 12-week training program on the physical and psychological health of young adults. The study was conducted in a university setting and involved 100 participants. The training program consisted of three sessions per week, focusing on cardiovascular exercise, strength training, and flexibility exercises. Data were collected at baseline and after 12 weeks. The results showed a significant improvement in cardiovascular fitness, muscle strength, and flexibility. Additionally, there was a reduction in stress levels and an increase in overall well-being. The findings suggest that a structured 12-week training program can effectively improve physical and psychological health in young adults.

- How to calculate:
 - When the cost of the asset is included in the gross proceeds, the gross proceeds are the net proceeds.
