Locomotion and Posture in Older Adults Fabio Augusto Barbieri, Rodrigo Vitória, 2017-02-07 This book is an attempt to advance the discussion and improve our understanding about the effects of aging and movement disorders on motor control during walking and postural tasks Despite these activities are performed daily there is a high requirement of motor and neural systems in order to perform both tasks efficiently Both walking and posture require a complex interaction of musculoskeletal and neural systems However the mechanisms used to control these tasks as well as how they are planned and coordinated are still a question of discussion among health professionals and researchers In addition this discussion is more interesting when the effects of aging are included in the context of locomotion and the postural control The number of older individuals is 841 million in 2015 which is four times higher than the 202 million that lived in 1950 Aging causes many motor sensorial and neural deficits which impair locomotion and postural control in the elderly The severity of this framework is worsened when
