Park, 2025-07-29 How the subtle but significant consequences of a hotter planet have already begun from lower test scores to higher crime rates and how we might tackle them today It's hard not to feel anxious about the problem of climate change especially if we think of it as an impending planetary catastrophe In Slow Burn R. Jisung Park encourages us to view climate change through a different lens one that focuses less on the possibility of mass climate extinction in a theoretical future and more on the everyday implications of climate change here and now Drawing on a wealth of new data and cutting edge economics Park shows how climate change headlines often miss some of the most important costs When wildfires blaze what happens to people downwind of the smoke When natural disasters destroy buildings and bridges what happens to educational outcomes Park explains how climate change operates as the silent accumulation of a thousand tiny conflagrations imperceptibly elevated health risks spread across billions of people pennies off the dollar of productivity fewer opportunities for upward mobility By investigating how the physical phenomenon of climate change interacts with social and economic institutions Park illustrates how climate change already affects everyone and may act as an amplifier of inequality Wealthier households and corporations may adapt quickly but without targeted interventions less advantaged communities may not Viewing climate change as a slow and unequal burn comes with an important silver lining It puts dollars and cents behind the case for aggressive emissions cuts and helps identify concrete steps that can be taken to better manage its adverse effects We can begin to overcome our climate anxiety Park shows us when we begin to tackle these problems locally History

Lessons S.G. Grant, 2014-04-04 In this book extended case studies of two veteran teachers and their students are combined with the extant research literature to explore current issues of teaching learning and testing U S history It is among the first to examine these issues together and in interaction While the two teachers share several similarities the teaching practices they construct could not be more different To explore these differences the author asks what their teaching practices look like how their instruction influences their students' understandings of history and what role statewide exams play in their classroom decisions History Lessons Teaching Learning and Testing in U S High School Classrooms is a major contribution to the emerging body of empirical research in the field of social studies education chiefly in the subject area of history which asks how U S students make sense of history and how teachers construct their classroom practices Three case study chapters are paired with three essay review chapters intended to help readers analyze the cases by looking at them in the context of the current research literature Two concluding chapters extend the cases and analyses the first looks at how and why the teachers profiled in this book construct their individual teaching practices in terms of three distinct but interacting sets of influences personal organizational and policy factors the second explores the prospects for promoting what the author defines as ambitious teaching and learning Many policymakers assume that standards based reforms support the efforts of ambitious teachers but until we better understand how they and the students in their classes think and act that assumption is hollow at best This book is a must have for faculty and students in the field of social studies education and broadly relevant across the fields of curriculum studies and educational policy Social Studies Curriculum, The, Fourth Edition E. Wayne Ross,2014-11-01 This fully revised and updated edition includes twelve new chapters on contemporary topics such as ecological democracy Native studies inquiry teaching and Islamophobia The Social Studies Curriculum Fourth Edition updates the definitive overview of the issues teachers face when creating learning experiences for students in social studies The book connects the diverse elements of the social studies curriculum civic global social issues offering a unique and critical perspective that separates it from other texts Completely updated this book includes twelve new chapters on the history of the social studies democratic social studies citizenship education anarchist inspired transformative social studies patriotism ecological democracy Native studies inquiry teaching Islamophobia capitalism and class struggle gender sex sexuality and youth experiences in school and critical media literacy All the chapters from the previous edition have been thoroughly revised and updated including those on teaching social studies in the age of curriculum standardization and high stakes testing critical multicultural social studies prejudice and racism assessment and teaching democracy Readers are encouraged to reconsider their assumptions and understanding about the origins purposes nature and possibilities of the social studies curriculum You Can't Write That Laura Aull,2023-11-23 A fascinating take on what schools and tests have done to English presenting an alternative for the future of writing US Education in a World of Migration Jill Koyama,Mathangi Subramanian,2014-03-14 Given the protracted varied and geographically expansive changes in migration over time it is difficult to establish an overarching theory that adequately analyzes the school experiences of immigrant youth in the United States This volume extends the scholarly work on these experiences by exploring how immigrants carve out new identities construct meanings and negotiate spaces for themselves within social structures created or mediated by education policy and practice It highlights immigrants that position themselves within global movements while experiencing the everyday effects of federal state and local education policy a phenomenon referred to as glocal global local or localized global phenomena Chapter authors acknowledge and honor the agency that immigrants wield and combine social theories and qualitative methods to empirically document the ways in which immigrants take active roles in enacting education policy Surveying immigrants from China Bangladesh India Haiti Japan Colombia and Liberia this volume offers a broad spectrum of immigrant experiences that problematize policy narratives that narrowly define notions of immigrant citizenship and student
