

Education Reflection Paper

John Dewey is one the most recognized and outspoken education theorists of the twentieth century known for his dedication to education. In the book titled, "John Dewey Experience and Education" he points out ideas and problems with education from his past fifty years of experience in the profession. In this reflection paper I will discuss my thoughts; reactions to Dewey's ideas on traditional and progressive schools, and discuss how it relates to my own personal experience in adult education. In addition, I will include how the information in the book relates to the chapter review on distance education and my agency visit to Sarasota County Technical Institute.

One of the central ideas that I noticed throughout the book is the struggle between traditional and progressive styles of education. Dewey states in the opening of the first chapter, "Mankind likes to think in terms of extreme opposites...formulating its beliefs in terms of Either-Ors, between which it recognizes no intermediate possibilities" (Dewey, 1938. p.17). I think Dewey pinpoints the issue of traditional versus progressive education that he saw happening over his span in education and that is still occurring today. On one side there is traditional education where facts are memorized, structure, and discipline take place and students are treated almost like sponges absorbing as much information as they can. On the other side is progressive education that takes the extreme opposite of anything traditional and provides an unstructured, free, and student directed curriculum. Dewey hit the nail on the head in terms of how educators can take aspects from traditional and progressive education and incorporates that into a valuable student learning experience that leads to positive growth.

Paver, 2016-02-17 A major and continuing problem for theological education and the practice of Christian ministry is how to best achieve a genuine integration between theory and practice theology and experience The key claim of this book is that theological reflection beginning with experience is a method of integration and that pastoral supervision is a vehicle for theological reflection In establishing this claim John Paver demonstrates that the model and method have potential to be a catalyst for reform within theological colleges and seminaries Three different theological reflection models are developed and critiqued in this book and their capacity to be developed in particular contexts is explored This book does not stop at ministry cultural and personal integration but is bold enough to make recommendations for structural integration within the theological institution Reflections on the History of
