

Training manual structure template

1.	title or heading of subject/course/department/job training
2.	index, timetable, programme (especially itemising training content and elements)
3.	training policy or policy summary (and reference to full current policy document - emphasise issues about equality and employment/discrimination law)
4.	introduction/definitions (manual structure and glossary, terminology, training design rationale, etc)
5.	aims, expectations, measures (setting the scene - explaining what will happen - mutual expectations and standards - the Kirkpatrick model is useful for this)
6.	use of manual (how the manual works and how it relates to the training and the job)
7.	training methods, support, media, materials (the training formats and options, tutors and support)
8.	training content/elements (itemised and presented in logical sequence and in suitably sized elements for delegates' learning ability, and reflecting the order of training activities and delivery - see example formats below - again see Kirkpatrick's model which can be used as a structure for each element - and also see the VAK learning styles and Kolb learning cycle/styles model, both of which are helpful in ensuring delivery formats meet needs of all preferred learning and communications styles)
9.	ongoing learning and follow-up (especially help with practical implementation - optionally this section can be included after each training element, which is preferable where content is extensive or complex - include any relevant information to help and encourage learners to apply new capabilities and to continue learning)
10.	bibliography and references (further information sources - again optionally this section can be included after each training element if more effective for delegates)
11.	copyright and authorship information (as appropriate - obviously more significant for externally provided training)

Intelligent Document Retrieval Udo Kruschwitz, 2006-01-09 Collections of digital documents can nowadays be found everywhere in institutions universities or companies Examples are Web sites or intranets But searching them for information can still be painful Searches often return either large numbers of matches or no suitable matches at all Such document collections can vary a lot in size and how much structure they carry What they have in common is that they typically do have some structure and that they cover a limited range of topics The second point is significantly different from the Web in general The type of search system that we propose in this book can suggest ways of refining or relaxing the query to assist a user in the search process In order to suggest sensible query modifications we would need to know what the documents are about Explicit knowledge about the document collection encoded in some electronic form is what we need However typically such knowledge is not available So we construct it automatically

Optimising Business Performance with Standard Software Systems Heinz-Dieter Knöll, Lukas W. H. Kühn, Roland W. A. Kühn, Robert Moreton, 2013-12-01 Preface In recent years Standard Software has evolved from a tool for supporting commercial administrative activities e g financial accounting to integrated systems that cover entire business processes in companies The rapid development of these systems an increasing number of implementations and the suppliers announcements concerning the functional extension of their systems lead us to expect a further market penetration of Standard Software SAP s Industrial Solutions for instance which are offered for the key processes of entire lines of business demonstrate the impressive success of Standard Software Systems The widespread implementation of commercial Standard Software has required considerable investments by industrial and service companies Now it is time to verify if the planned gains and advantages of these systems have actually been realised i e one has to ask whether the systems payoff as originally expected It has to be kept in mind that the vendors have promised far reaching optimisation of their clients business processes by means of the so called best practice reference processes implied by their systems The advantages of these best practices should have been incorporated in the processes of the respective companies On closer inspection one can see that the claimed advantages of the systems capabilities in terms of optimised processes have not been realised in many of the current implementations Studies and interviews undertaken with applying companies as part of the research for this book confirm this finding
