Measuring Sustainability and CSR: From Reporting to Decision-Making Slobodan Kacanski,Johannes Kabderian Dreyer,Kristian J. Sund,2023-03-28 This book discusses reliability and other related issues such as reporting and decision making pertinent to sustainability and corporate responsibility reporting practices Investors governments and NGOs expect businesses to report their environmental and social performance This information is used to legislate regulate industries and guide the investment of billions of dollars through pensions and mutual funds But can we trust these measurements In order to answer this question the editors and contributors all academic thought leaders from a variety of fields offer a set of reflections on problems that various stakeholders might be exposed to These problems are mainly due to a lack of standardized reporting practices and guidelines and inconsistencies in measurements used for the valuation of corporate sustainability performance indicators This book is of great interest to students scholars and stakeholders to help comprehend the importance of accounting on sustainability practices for decision making and measures therein but also the reliability risks involved in these measurements Thus it moves away from simply pushing for more sustainability reporting towards a more critical discussion of measurement issues and potential consequences of the aforementioned problems to different fields such as finance marketing or strategy Monthly Catalog of United States Government Publications United States. The Million Person Study of Low-Dose

Radiation Health Effects John D. Boice Jr,André Bouville,Lawrence T. Dauer,Ashley P. Golden,Richard

Wakeford,2024-11-25 This book presents original research findings of The Million Person Study of Low Dose Radiation Health Effects MPS the largest and most comprehensive epidemiologic study of its kind to investigate the health effects of low level chronic radiation exposure on American workers and veterans throughout the 20th century Since the early 1900s epidemiologists have studied the consequences of radiation exposures yet the health effects of low levels received gradually over time remain unresolved This uncertainty comes at a time when the public and workers are experiencing ever increasing levels of radiation exposure from advances in medical radiation imaging techniques e g CT scans frequent flying at high altitudes and environmental and occupational exposures The MPS is providing answers by studying 30 radiation exposed U S populations including workers at nuclear power plants radiologists workers at former Manhattan Project sites nuclear submariners nuclear weapons test participants atomic veterans industrial radiographers and radium dial painters Ongoing for more than 20 years and coordinated by the National Council on Radiation Protection and Measurements Vanderbilt University Medical Center and Memorial Sloan Kettering Cancer Center the MPS is a national effort supported by the Department of Energy National Aeronautics and Space Administration U S Navy Defense Threat Reduction Agency Nuclear Regulatory Commission Centers for Disease Control and Prevention and the Environmental Protection Agency Unparalleled in scope and quality the MPS provides an understanding of low dose health effects that is desperately needed for decision makers and the radiation protection community as society continues to increase the uses of radiation technologies Individual chapters were originally published in the International Journal of Radiation Biology
