Online Student Teacher's Guide

The purpose of this guide is to help you understand the concepts of color vision and how they relate to the PhET Color Vision simulation. This guide is designed for use by student teachers and is intended to provide a comprehensive overview of the simulation's features and the underlying science of color vision.

The simulation is divided into several sections, each focusing on a different aspect of color vision. The first section, "Color Vision," introduces the basic concepts of color and how they are perceived by the human eye. The second section, "Additive Color Mixing," explores how different colors of light can be combined to create new colors. The third section, "Subtractive Color Mixing," discusses how different pigments or dyes can be mixed to produce various colors. The fourth section, "Color Blindness," provides information about different types of color vision deficiencies and how they affect color perception.

Throughout the simulation, you will find interactive elements such as sliders, checkboxes, and data tables that allow you to explore the effects of different parameters on color perception. These interactive features are designed to help you develop a deeper understanding of the concepts being presented and to encourage you to make predictions and test them against the simulation's results.

PhET is a free, open-source, and peer-reviewed online science education resource. It is designed to be used by students and teachers alike, and it is constantly updated with new content and features. The PhET Color Vision simulation is no exception, and it is a valuable tool for anyone interested in learning more about color vision and the human eye.

Color Vision

The purpose of this simulation is to help you understand the concepts of color vision and how they relate to the human eye. This simulation is designed for use by students and is intended to provide a comprehensive overview of the simulation's features and the underlying science of color vision.

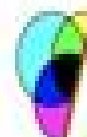

Additive Color Mixing

Additive color mixing is the process of combining different colors of light to create new colors. This process is based on the fact that different colors of light have different wavelengths, and when they are combined, they create a new color that is the sum of the individual colors.

Subtractive Color Mixing

Subtractive color mixing is the process of combining different pigments or dyes to create new colors. This process is based on the fact that different pigments or dyes absorb different wavelengths of light, and when they are combined, they create a new color that is the result of the absorption of the individual colors.
