Author: Nekisa Mahzad

I have been a student at California State University Channel Islands (CI) for 5 semesters, and over the course of my stay I have grown and learned more than I thought possible. I came to this school from Moorpark Community College already knowing that I wanted to be an English teacher; I had taken numerous English courses and though I knew exactly what I was headed for-was I ever wrong. Going through the English program has taught me so much more than stuff about literature and language, it has taught me how to be me. I have learned here how to write and express myself, how to think for myself, and how to find the answers to the things that I don't know. Most importantly I have learned how important literature and language are.

When I started at CI, I thought I was going to spend the next 3 years reading classics, discussing them and then writing about them. That was what I did in community college English courses, so I didn't think it would be much different here. On the surface, to an outsider, I am sure that this is what it appears that C.I. English majors do. In most all my classes I did read, discuss, and write papers; however, I quickly found out that that there was so much more to it. One specific experience I had while at C.I. really shows how integrated this learning is. Instead of writing a paper for my final project in Perspectives of Multicultural Literature (ENGL 449), I decided with a friend to venture to an Indian reservation and compare it to a book we read by Sherman Alexie. We had a great time and we learned so much more that we ever could have done from writing a paper. The opportunity to do that showed me that there are so many ways that one can learn that are both fun and educational.

The English courses also taught me how powerful the written word and language can be. Words tell so much more than a story. Stories tell about life and the human condition, they bring up the past and people and cultures that are long gone. Literature teaches about the self and the world surrounding the self. From these classes I learned about the world, its people and its history; through literature I learned how we as humans are all related. By writing about what we learn and/or what we believe, we are learning how to express ourselves.

I know that my ability to write and express my ideas, thoughts and knowledge has grown stronger each semester. I have always struggled to put my thoughts on paper in a manner that is coherent and correct according to assignments. I can remember being told numerous times in community college to "organize your

Self-Evaluation: Fostering Reflective Learning Jean MacGregor, 1993 For several decades college teachers have been asking students to engage in self evaluation to reflect on their academic work and describe and evaluate it in writing Student self evaluation is both a process consisting of acts of reflecting composing and writing and a product a written document Student self evaluation does not obviate the need for student exams and papers crucial indicators of student mastery of material or complexity of thinking Rather student self evaluation supplements and complements that information by asking students to describe in their own words their learning and its value to them This writing and the conversations that faculty members and students have about it can be instructional illuminating and at times transformative Student self evaluation is primarily a learning strategy but it is also a promising assessment approach while enriching learning for students it also can help teachers and institutions learn about student learning This volume of New Directions for Teaching and Learning introduces the many forms of student self evaluation in undergraduate teaching settings and describes how student self evaluation creates connections between learners and learning knowers and the known and the self and the mind This is the 56th issue of the quarterly journal New Directions for Teaching and Learning For more information on the series please see the Journals and Periodicals page Experimental Writing in Composition Patricia Suzanne Sullivan, 2012-12-15 From the outset experimental writing has been viewed as a means to afford a more creative space for students to express individuality underrepresented social realities and criticisms of dominant socio political discourses and their institutions Yet the recent trend toward multimedia texts has left many composition instructors with little basis from which to assess these new forms and to formulate pedagogies In this original study Patricia Suzanne Sullivan provides a critical history of experimental writing theory and its aesthetic foundations and demonstrates their application to current multimodal writing Sullivan unpacks the work of major scholars in composition and rhetoric and their theories on aesthetics particularly avant gardism She also relates the dialectics that shape these aesthetics and sheds new light on both the positive and negative aspects of experimental writing and its attempts to redefine the writing disciplines Additionally she shows how current debates over the value of multimedia texts echo earlier arguments that pitted experimental writing against traditional models Sullivan further articulates the ways that multimedia is and isn't changing composition pedagogies and provides insights into seventeenth and early nineteenth centuries manual writing was a dynamic technology It examines script in relation to becoming a writer in constructions of the author and in emerging ideas of the human Revising views of print as displacing script Work in Hand argues that print reproduced script print generated script and print shaped understandings of script In this the double nature of print as both moveable type and rolling press is crucial During this period the shapes of letters changed as the multiple hands of the early modern period gave way to English round hand the denial of writing to the labouring classes was slowly replaced by acceptance of the desirability of universal writing understandings of script in relation to copying and discipline came to be accompanied by ideas of the autograph The work begins by surveying representations of script in letterpress and engraving It discusses initiation into writing in relation to the copy books of English writing masters and in the context of colonial pedagogy in Ireland and India The middle chapters discuss the physical work of writing the material dimensions of script and the autograph in constructions of the author in the late eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries and in relation to Samuel Johnson Alexander Pope William Blake Isaac D Israeli and Maria Edgeworth The final chapter considers the emerging association of script with ideas of the human in the work of the Methodist preacher Joseph Barker

A Rhetoric of Reflection Kathleen Yancey, 2016-08-15 Reflection in writing studies is now entering a third generation Dating from the 1970s the first generation of reflection focused on identifying and describing internal cognitive processes assumed to be part of composing The second generation operating in both classroom and assessment scenes in the 1990s developed mechanisms for externalizing reflection making it visible and thus explicitly available to help writers Now a third generation of work in reflection is emerging As mapped by the contributors to A Rhetoric of Reflection this iteration of research and practice is taking up new questions in new sites of activity and with new theories It comprises attention to transfer of writing knowledge and practice teaching and assessment portfolios linguistic and cultural difference and various media including print and digital It conceptualizes conversation as a primary reflective medium both inside and outside the classroom and for individuals and collectives and articulates the role that different genres play in hosting reflection Perhaps most important in the work of this third generation is the identification and increasing appreciation of the epistemic value of reflection of its ability to help make new meanings and of its rhetorical power for both scholars and students Contributors Anne Beaufort Kara Taczak Liane Robertson Michael Neal Heather Ostman Cathy Leaker Bruce Horner Asao B Inoue Tyler Richmond J Elizabeth Clark Naomi Silver Christina Russell McDonald Pamela Flash Kevin Roozen Jeff Sommers Doug Hesse
