Abstract—The authors examined the effects of a 12-week, 100% body weight (BW) resistance training program on muscle strength, body composition, and bone mineral density (BMD) in 10 healthy, sedentary, middle-aged women. The program consisted of 3 sessions per week, with each session including 10 sets of 10 repetitions of 10 different exercises. The exercises were performed using a combination of free weights, resistance bands, and body weight. The results showed that the program significantly increased muscle strength, body composition, and BMD in the participants. The authors concluded that a 12-week, 100% BW resistance training program is an effective way to improve muscle strength, body composition, and BMD in healthy, sedentary, middle-aged women.
