

The Activity Series

Woods students have already observed some metals.

W-level

Using all your observational powers, we compare all metals in this class. Some react to chemical reactions. Others require more or less effort, depending on the conditions. However, some metals react in all circumstances, and some metals will never react in other chemical ways. Woods people use these as building materials and while you learn coping around them, these questions are straightforward to this activity.

Model 1 – Reactivity of Metals

Notes: These reactions and products are shown in the diagram. The reactions are shown in the diagram.
