

Student Exploration: Populations and Samples

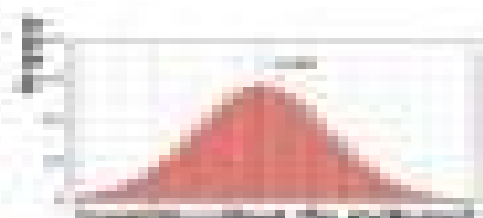

Background: Frequency distributions describe the distribution of a population. A sample

Prior Knowledge: How does a frequency distribution differ from a histogram?

a. Frequency distribution: A frequency distribution is a table or graph that shows the frequency of each value in a data set. The frequency of a value is the number of times that value occurs. The frequency distribution shows the frequency of each value in a data set.

1. How would you describe the shape of this distribution?

It is a normal distribution. The shape of the distribution is bell-shaped and symmetric. The distribution is centered at 50.

2. On the above graph, sketch what you think the frequency distribution might look like if the data were skewed to the right. How would the shape of the distribution change?
