Solutions to Childhood obesity

Childhood obesity problems have specific solutions that touch on all the stakeholders involved in a child's life. The stakeholders include the children, parents, teachers, schools, communities, civic leaders and government agencies. On the part of the children, they can be a solution to themselves by learning good eating habits.

The habits include eating lots of fruits and vegetables and making sure they are active most of the time by engaging in sports activities. The parents on their side should play a great role in limiting the time that their children spend on TV and computer games. This is solely because spending more time on TV and computer games reduces physical activity. This affects the children through increase in consumption of high-calorie snacks (Freedman, Dietz, & Srinivasan, 1999).

On the part of teachers, they play a vital role since they spend most of the time with the children. One important solution that teachers can offer is by introducing a form of rotation between the classroom curriculum and extra-curriculum activities. This helps greatly in the children learning abilities since active students are more alert and learn easily.

Another solution that teachers can provide is having a program that raises awareness about physical fitness among both the children and their teachers. In addition, the teachers can have the children involved in healthy meal planning talks by inviting a health educator to speak to them (Graves, Meyers, & Clark, 1988).

On the part of the school as a whole, they should have a coordinated school health program that is capable of addressing all the physical activities and nutrition. In this case, the health program should be able to integrate all the activities of a school community that influences the health of a student.

Amongst the components that it should integrate, include health education, physical education, counseling, psychological and social services. School authorities should also seek the indulgence of students in getting an input to the school menu through engaging in focus groups or contests.

On the part of the community, they can give a solution to childhood obesity through increasing access by the public to places such as playgrounds, gyms and walking or biking trails to increase physical activities of the children. Another solution the community can offer is increasing access to a variety of food choices.

Obesity Prevention Laurette Dube, 2010-06-25 Over the years approaches to obesity prevention and treatment have gone from focusing on genetic and other biological factors to exploring a diversity of diets and individual behavior modification interventions anchored primarily in the power of the mind to the recent shift focusing on societal interventions to design temptation proof physical social and economic environments In spite of repeated calls to action including those of the World Health Organization WHO the pandemic continues to progress WHO recently projected that if the current lifestyle trend in young and adult populations around the world persist by 2012 in countries like the USA health care costs may amount to as much as 17.7% of the GDP Most importantly in large part due to the problems of obesity those children may be the first generation ever to have a shorter life expectancy than that of their parents Obesity Prevention presents the most current research and proposals for addressing the pandemic Past studies have focused primarily on either genetic or behavioral causes for obesity however today's research indicates that a strongly integrated program is the best prospect for success in overcoming obesity Furthermore focus on the role of society in establishing an affordable accessible and sustainable program for implementing these lifestyle changes is vital particularly for those in economically challenged situations who are ultimately at the highest risk for obesity Using studies from both neuroscience and behavioral science to present a comprehensive overview of the challenges and possible solutions The brain to society approach to obesity prevention focuses on what is needed in order to sustain a healthy pleasurable and affordable lifestyle Explores the brain to society approach to obesity prevention focusing on an integrative approach to addressing the obesity pandemic Presents both the neuroscientific and the behavioral factors that impact eating habits Identifies the challenges and suggests solutions for altering attitudes toward food on both an individual and a societal level

 Hakan Murat ARSLAN, Adriana BURLEA-SCHIOPOIU, Liza ALILI SULEJMANI, 2020-01-29 The present study is an analysis of the connections established between the intercultural phenomenon and trade Both intercultural contacts and commerce appeared and developed due to humans mobility and their basis was exchange either spiritual or material Since the dawn of history people travelled a lot and exchanged knowledge and goods for instance silk was brought to Europe by two Byzantine monks from China in 550 C E so travel generated interculturality and trade Intercultural contacts can be positive trade for example or negative wars One can say that interculturality is a trait of the human species Many innovations in different fields spread due to intercultural exchange globalisation is also based on cross cultural or intercultural contacts The Industrial Revolution and colonialism represented the main causes of the intensification of intercultural contacts which generated an increase in international trade In contemporary human society this kind of relationships is essential for development in any activity field The globalised trade in nowadays world was generated by interculturality and World Trade Organization was founded to facilitate it and to create an international network the technological evolution and the modern means of transport enhanced the relations between different cultures Interculturality is an umbrella concept covering a diversity of domains communication religion education anthropology literature etc In this paper we try to answer to the following question How can interculturality influence trade or vice versa by pointing out the main aspects of the analysed phenomena and their links To accomplish this task we shall make use of the historical method and imagology Human-Computer Interaction.
