Renn, 2012-02-01 It's kind of an odd thing really because it's not like I'm one or the other or like I fit here or there but I kind of also fit everywhere And nowhere All at once You know Florence My racial identity I would have to say is multiracial I am of the future I believe there is going to come a day when a very very large majority of everybody in the world is going to be mixed with more than one race It's going to be multiracial for everybody Everybody and their mother Jack Kristen A Renn offers a new perspective on racial identity in the United States that of mixed race college students making sense of the paradox of deconstructing racial categories while living on campuses sharply divided by race and ethnicity Focusing on how peer culture shapes identity in public and private spaces the book presents the findings of a qualitative research study involving fifty six undergraduates from a variety of institutions Renn uses an innovative ecology model to examine campus peer cultures and documents five patterns of multiracial identity that illustrate possibilities for integrating notions of identity construction and deconstruction with the highly salient nature of race in higher education One of the most ambitious scholarly attempts to date to portray the diverse experiences and identities of mixed race college students the book also discusses implications for higher education practice policy theory and research A Guide to Writing College Admissions Essays Cory M. we want the best for our children Irena Smith tackles this question from a unique vantage point as a former Stanford admissions officer a private Palo Alto college counselor and a mother of three children who struggle to find their place in the long shadow of Stanford University Written as a series of responses to actual college essay prompts this witty raw memoir takes the reader from the smoke filled lobby of the Hebrew Aid Society in Rome where Irena and her parents await asylum with other Soviet refugees in 1977 to the overpriced house she and her husband buy in Palo Alto in 1999 to the hushed inner sanctum of the Stanford admissions office Irena grows a successful college counseling practice but struggles to reconcile the lofty aspirations of tightly wound competitive high school seniors and their anxious parents with her own attempts to keep her family from unraveling as one by one her children are diagnosed with autism learning differences depression and anxiety And although she doesn't initially understand her children or how to help them she will not stop stumbling and learning until she figures it out The Golden Ticket opens a much needed conversation about extreme parenting the weight of generational expectations and what happens when Gen X dreams meet unexpected realities It's a sharp eyed depiction of hard won triumphs and of the messy challenging parts of parenting you won't see on Facebook or Instagram Above all it's an invitation to embrace a broader more generous definition of success Brody's Guide to the College Admissions Essay Jay
