Wced Past Papers Life Orientation:

The Biopolitics of Water Sofie Hellberg, 2018-03-28 Biopolitics refers to a form of politics concerned with administering and regulating the conditions of life at an aggregated level of populations. This book provides a biopolitical perspective on water governance and its effects. It draws on the work of Foucault to explore how notions of scarcity are used in strategies of governance and how such governance differentiates between different populations. Furthermore, the author investigates what such biopolitical regulation means for people's lifestyles and the way they understand themselves and their moral responsibilities as humans, individuals, and citizens. The book begins by investigating the global water agenda with a particular emphasis on its focus on water for basic needs and provides different examples of hydromentalities around the world. It also presents rich empirical details of one local case in South Africa. By carefully exploring the water stories of water users, the book provides new perspectives on the relationship between water and power. Additionally, it offers an innovative methodological framework through which we can study the workings of governance more generally and water governance specifically. It thereby contributes to the scholarship on water governance in relation to how water governance and technologies are part of producing subjectivities, notions of life and lifestyles, and more specifically how the global water agenda can work so as to produce or further entrench distinctions between different lives and lifestyles. Ultimately, such differences between individuals and populations that are produced as an effect of water governance are assessed in relation to social sustainability.

Identity, Trauma, Sensitive and Controversial Issues in the Teaching of History Hilary Cooper, Jon Nichol, 2015-10-13 History Education is a politically contested subject. It can be used to both promote xenophobia and to develop critical thinking, multiple perspectives, and tolerance. Accordingly, this book critically examines complex issues and constructivist approaches that make history relevant to students' understanding of the modern world. As such, it has global appeal, especially in North and South America, Canada, Europe, and Asia. The book's authors address the major challenges that History Education faces in an era of globalisation, digital revolution, and international terrorism, nationalism, and sectarian and religious conflict and warfare. Central to this volume are controversial issues: trauma and questions of personal and national identity from a wide range of international settings and perspectives. The research in this book was undertaken by leading history educators from every continent. Their interdisciplinary research represents an important contribution to the teaching of social sciences, social psychology, civic education, programmes, history, and history education in schools, colleges, and universities. The book offers new approaches to history educators at all levels. In addition, the chapters offer potential as required reading for students to both develop an international perspective and to compare and contrast their own situations with those that the book covers. Section I considers issues related to identity: how can history education promote social coherence in multicultural societies, in societies divided by sectarianism, or countries adapting to regime changes, whether Communist or Fascist, including for example South Africa, previously Communist countries of Eastern Europe and previous dictatorships in South America and Western Europe It discusses such questions as How important is it that students learn the content of history through the processes of historical enquiry What should that content be and who should decide it educators or politicians What is the role of textbooks and who should write and select them Should history be taught as a discrete discipline or as part of a citizenship or social sciences curriculum Sections II and III explore ways in which memory of sensitive issues related to the past to war or to massacres may be addressed Are there new methodologies or approaches which make this possible How can students understand situations involving intolerance and injustice NGO

Discourses in the Debate on Genetically Modified Crops Ksenia Gerasimova,2017-07-20 The development and use of genetically modified organisms GMOs has been a contentious topic for the last three decades While there have been a number of social science analyses of the issues this is the first book to assess the role of Non Governmental Organizations NGOs in the debate at such a wide geographic scale The various positions for and against GMOs particularly with regard to transgenic crops articulated by NGOs in the debate are dissected classified and juxtaposed to corresponding campaigns These are discussed in the context of key conceptual paradigms including nature fundamentalism and the organic movement post colonialism food sovereignty anti globalisation sustainability and feminism The book also analyses how NGOs interpret the debate and the persuasive communication tactics they use This provides greater understanding of the complexity of negotiations in the debate and explains its specific features such as its global scope and difficulty in finding compromises The author assesses the long term interests of various participants and changes in perceptions of science and in public communication as a result Examples of major NGOs such as Greenpeace Oxfam and WWF are included but the author also provides new research into the role of NGOs in Russia Guidelines for Social Life Cycle Assessment of Products

United Nations Environment Programme,Evan Stuart Andrews,2009 The Guidelines for Social Life Cycle Assessment of Products provides a map a skeleton and a flash light for stakeholders engaging in the assessment of social and socio economic impacts of products life cycle The map describes the context the key concepts the broader field in which tools and techniques are getting developed and their scope of application The skeleton presents key elements to consider and provide guidance for the goal and scope inventory impact assessment and interpretation phases of a social life cycle assessment The flash light highlights areas where further research is needed Social Life Cycle Assessment is a technique available to account for stories and inform systematically on impacts that otherwise would be lost in the vast and fast moving sea of our modern world May it help stakeholders to effectively and efficiently engage to improve social and socio economic conditions of production and consumption The 'Ecosystem Approach' in International Environmental Law Vito De Lucia,2019-03-28 The ecosystem approach broadly understood as a legal and governance strategy for integrated environmental and biodiversity management has been adopted within a wide variety of international environmental legal regimes and provides a narrative a policy approach and in some cases legally binding obligations for States to implement

what has been called a new paradigm of environmental management In this last respect the ecosystem approach is also often considered to offer an opportunity to move beyond the outdated anthropocentric framework underpinning much of international environmental law thus helping re think law in the Anthropocene Against this background this book addresses the question of whether the ecosystem approach represents a paradigm shift in international environmental law and governance or whether it is in conceptual and operative continuity with legal modernity This central question is explored through a combined genealogical and biopolitical framework which reveals how the ecosystem approach is the result of multiple contingencies and contestations and of the interplay of divergent and sometimes irreconcilable ideological projects The ecosystem approach this books shows does not have a univocal identity and must be understood as both signalling the potential for a decisive shift in the philosophical orientation of law and the operationalisation of a biopolitical framework of control that is in continuity with and even intensifies the eco destructive tendencies of legal modernity It is however in revealing this disjunction that the book opens up the possibility of moving beyond the already tired assessment of environmental law through the binary of anthropocentrism and ecocentrism

Sakellariou,2018-05-04 This groundbreaking work is the most in depth and state of the art study on the Life Cycle Assessment LCA of energy systems the only volume available on this critical subject Energy and sustainability are two of the most important and often most misunderstood subjects in our world today As these two subjects have grown in importance over the last few decades interest in the Life Cycle Assessment LCA model has grown as well as a potentially crucial tool in understanding and striving towards sustainability in energy systems Not just wind and solar systems but all energy systems need to be understood through this model Wind and solar power have the potential to decentralize the U S energy system by offering local communities electricity and economic support depending on the scale and design of projects Nevertheless every energy technology potentially faces environmental costs lay and expert opposition and risks to public health Engineers play a central role as designers builders and operators in energy systems As they extend their expertise into electrical mechanical and chemical fields from fossil fuel based systems to renewable energy systems sustainability is steadily becoming one of the key criteria engineers apply in their work This groundbreaking new study argues that engineering cultures foster sustainability by adopting assumptions and problem solving practices as part of their identities when designing and building engineering projects This work examines the politics of creating utilizing and modifying Life Cycle Assessment LCA in the construction of renewable energy systems The only volume of its kind ever written it is a must have for any engineer scientist manager or other professional working in or interested in Life Cycle Assessment and its relation to energy systems and impact on environmental and economic sustainability Sustainable Action in Economy and Society

Malte Faber,Reiner Manstetten,Marco Rudolf,Marc Frick,Mi-Yong Becker,2024-09-19 Climate change species extinction energy and raw material shortages are global challenges that are directly linked to our economic activity They affect our very existence and jeopardize our ability to lead a good life today and in the future both as a society and as individuals The range of questions for which we need answers seems limitless and finding the right path for global change increasingly utopian

How do we maintain an overview in the face of highly complex interrelationships and interactions How can we distinguish the essential from the non essential What fundamental relationships in nature do we need to take into account What kind of economy is appropriate What is just And under what conditions are people willing to change This book offers orientation It deals with concepts from the natural sciences economics and philosophy including time thermodynamics scarcity responsibility and justice which enable an understanding of the upcoming transformation to sustainability from different perspectives Ideally they serve as guidelines for effective decisions and show how change is possible despite immense challenges The book is aimed at anyone who wants to contribute to the transformation towards sustainability whether in politics business administration or civil society

Understanding Sustainable Architecture Terry J. Williamson, Antony Radford, Helen Bennetts, 2003 This book is a concise review of the assumptions beliefs goals and bodies of knowledge that underlie the endeavour to design environmentally sustainable buildings and other built developments

The Earth as Transformed by Human Action B. L. Turner, William C. Clark, Robert W. Kates, John F. Richards, Jessica T. Mathews, William B. Meyer, 1993-01-29 The Earth as Transformed by Human Action is the culmination of a mammoth undertaking involving the examination of the toll our continual strides forward technical and social take on our world The purpose of such a study is to document the changes in the biosphere that have taken place over the last 300 years to contrast global patterns of change to those appearing on a regional level and to explain the major human forces that have driven these changes The first section deals strictly with the major human forces of the past 300 years and the second is a detailed account of the transformations of the global environment wrought by human action The final section examines a range of perspectives and theories that purport to explain human actions with regard to the biosphere

Sand Mining in African Coastal Regions Ibrahim Rotimi Aliu, Isaiah Sewanu Akoteyon, Olayemi Soladoye, 2022-10-31 This book explores the drivers and impacts of sand mining in the coastal areas of Lagos Nigeria Based on empirical evidence sand mining activity is driven by a number of urbanization related factors while sand mining impacts are underlined by a number of sustainability related factors Four urbanization components describe the drivers of sand mining and four sustainability components describe the impacts of sand mining in Lagos This book concludes on the puzzling dilemma of sand mining that supports thriving urbanization but undermines environmental sustainability in Lagos Of course sand mining has strong implications for environmental sustainability in Lagos coastal areas This book is of immense benefit to environmental planners city administrators students of environmental science and the general public who have regards for environmental management

Sustainable Consumer Services

Minna Halme, 2012-05-16 The goal for consumer oriented business should be to make a profit and to do it without costing the Earth Yet exactly how to satisfy the needs and wants of consumers without contributing to environmental degradation is proving to be the essential but elusive goal for businesses in the 21st century The leading solution is to substitute material consumption with the consumption of services that offer consumers convenience and value but eliminate much of the inefficiency and waste associated with our throw away society Sustainable consumer services for households services that are delivered to consumers at the premises such as home delivery of organic food appliance leasing mobile laundry services internet marketing of homeservices or car pool schemes provide a key part of the answer of how to reduce material consumption and waste while still turning a profit Yet until now there has been little information to guide the development of such business models and practices and to develop ways to make service based consumption more attractive to consumers than object ownership based models This book equally a practical business handbook and business course text provides the missing link in sustainable household service competitiveness by examining the issues looking at business models providing dozens of real life best practice examples and presenting data from the first large scale consumer survey that explains consumer behaviour and what they want from home service provision The book is an essential resource for businesses and public or nonprofit organizations and housing organizations entering the growing consumer services market It provides a wealth of business know how on what works and what doesn't how to avoid potential pitfalls and how to provide consumer services at the household level that are profitable environmentally sustainable and that add to consumers quality of life
